VOL. VI.....NO. 1715. NEW-YORK, THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1857. PRICE TWO CENTS.

Nicaragua's hospitality, (no famine about it, either,)—he disputes the veracity of its "Voice:" yet I must say, that when I left her soil, only a month since, the Machuca rapids were a long twelve miles below the "Castillo," and I'll guarantee that if the "Voice" had to foot it through the thickets from Machuca to Castillo, as I did once, he would swear it was a hundred.

The intention which "the Voice" attributes to the Costa Ricans, of placing a gun battery at the Tauro, is very probable; and in my opinion of their judgment in such matters, we may expect to find them attempting to dislodge the weakest spot on the river—as the Tauro certainly is. The stream at that point is so very wide as to form the long extent of shoal water which custom has incorrectly termed a rapid. The banks are so very low on both sides as to require earthworks of some importance to resist an assault from a party landing below for such purpose.

"The Voice" states that the news recently received from San Juan came through "filibuster agents." This may be so. But when we find this representative of Nicaragua rambling about in such a funny manner, on the banks of her principal stream, surely great allowance should be granted him, when, in his wanderings, he leaves his own soil. Therefore (with a due deference to his veracity still in view) I presume he was aware that the purser of the English steamer Trent is not a confirmed filibuster, nor is the editor of the Aspinwall Courier noted for his loyal attachment to WALKER and his cause.

But enough of this. Let me add something for the edification of "The Voice," in the hope that hereafter its tone may be improved.

The steamer Texas on Feb. 12 was at San Juan del Norte, ready at 8 A. M. for sea, but on the evening previous, a courier came down the river from Col. LOCKRIDGE, asking that the Texas might be detained until 2 P. M. of the 19th, as he was about to attack the position of the enemy at Serapiqui, and consequently desired to forward accounts of the result. The Texas waited until 3 P. M., and left without any further intelligence. At 6 P. M., same day, dispatches came from LOCKRIDGE. Serapiqui was in his possession; also a large quantity of rifles, ammunition, provisions, clothing ("The Voice" to the contrary notwithstanding) and dispatches which Gen. MORA had sent down that day, to be forwarded into Costa Rica by the Serapiqui, (the most expeditious route,) and in which he begged for immediate reinforcements and represented his position as very critical. These documents were written some time after the battle of St. George, and they show conclusively that engagements must have taken place to change so suddenly the tenor of his dispatches.

On the 16th the Texas came to San Juan, bringing an account of LOCKRIDGE's ascent up the river to Castillo, where he drove the enemy from their barricade on the road below the fort. The steamers Scott and Machuca were lying at the foot of the rapids—the latter on fire. LOCKRIDGE's men made a rush for the Scott, (which had not yet commenced to burn,) cut her moorings, and the strong current soon carried her out of harm's way.

They had, evidently, set fire to the Machuca, thinking it would soon extend to the Scott. As to the boats being smeared with tar and rosin, I can only say that of the former article there had been but one barrel in the country for months, and that was at Punta Arenas after the event described. So also with the rosin; the last importation was used in the process of binding the copper pipes, &c., when engines were placed in the Hacia, at Punta Arenas.

A small force of the enemy occupied the fort, which is not large enough to hold many, and which every resident of the country knows is perched on a high and very steep hill. Through the side running into the river the railroad was cut, and such a slice taken off, that one hundred men could stand upright on the road, entirely out of sight of those in the fort above, and affording every opportunity to mine under the hill. In the fort, not two hundred yards distant, is a hill completely commanding this fort, it is Serapiqui, with the earthworks still standing which the English, under LOCKE, threw up, and with the small-bore guns, were able to render the place too warm for the Spaniards, although the latter had five large brass pieces mounted on the walls.

The steamer Scott was taken in good condition, with the exception that one of her engines had a connecting rod broken. A new one was being made at Punta Arenas to replace it. No ammunition reached her. Her wood-work was only scathed with rifle shots.

The Scott and Wheeler were the two best boats on the river. The latter was at first supposed to have been blown up by the Costa Ricans, but is ascertained to have been the one sunk below Serapiqui; and when she is raised, a matter easily accomplished, the most valuable of the steamers will be ready for use.

The Morgan was going over the Castillo Rapids when the Rescue came in sight below. The Bulwer, a long time ago, was towed up the Serapiqui in a disabled condition by the enemy.

If "The Voice's" Costa Rican veterans (I expect he is one himself—and if he isn't, he ought to be) have any strong desire to return to Hippis' Point from their excursion in the woods at Serapiqui, they will meet at that place a good reception—a noisy one, at least. If "The Voice" knew Col. LOCKRIDGE, he would never have any fears of his leaving his work undone, nor as to his capabilities of carrying out contracts for clearing a dozen such rivers.

No! No! Mr. "Voice," if your friends only left for a tramp in the woods, intending soon to return, surely such veterans would have taken with them at least their blankets, for, I suppose you know, Nicaragua is a little damp. Now and then—rains occasionally, used to when I was there—their pantaloons too; they must need them. Perhaps all such things slipped their memories.

As I happen to have run over the Castillo Rapids, in the dead of night, in this same Rescue, and when she had not as much power as she has now, I would not be surprised to learn that Col. LOCKRIDGE did the same identical thing. And the Costa Rican, sleeping quietly on board the lake steamer, at anchor off Virgin Bay, or under Omotega's lee, must not be surprised if, on some fine, quiet night, he finds the little Rescue close alongside, popping his slides with three or four brass pieces. This might make "The Voice" grow rather faint, but might all be done, nevertheless.

As to WALKER's position on the Transit, I have only to say that the problem can be solved by the simple rule of three, for if WALKER, with less than 600 men, has twice defeated and dispersed two armies of 3,000 men in fortified cities, how long will it take him to defeat a force 1,200 strong, with the advantage, this time, of being himself in the fortress?

WALKER can leave HERMOSILLO in Rivas with 200 men, (his defence at Granada proves this,) and no force the enemy can bring could drive him out. The balance of his force (400) can be ranged over the whole Department, gathering forage of all kinds. If the enemy pursue, they have to do so with their full force, and all WALKER asks is to get them in the open field, where no churches or houses offer shelter, and when this does take place, the veteran Gen. CANAS will have another opportunity to try the bottom and speed of his horse, as he did at the last fight on the transit road, when he and his force were driven through San Juan del Sur on the full run, he himself only escaping from WALKER's rangers by being better mounted.

WALKER cannot be starved out of the Department while he holds the city of Rivas. The enemy will soon ascertain this and will be compelled to do something. If they besiege HERMOSILLO while WALKER is outside, the latter then falls upon their rear, and again an open fight is at hand.

Rivas and its vicinity, according to the last accounts, was very healthy; few men have died from sickness since the headquarters of the army have been located there. Those who have died were nearly all present at the siege of Granada, and suffered from the effects.

If the "Voice" remains still unsatisfied as to the truth of LOCKRIDGE's success, or WALKER's ability to maintain his position, let him keep quiet, until above the 19th inst., when the Tennessee's arrival will solve my RULE OF THREE.

Another Answer to the Voice of Nicaragua.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, March 17, 1857.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

SIR: Though absent from my books and memoranda, and having but a few hours to refute a slander that has probably been for weeks in connection, I cannot let a post pass with a rejoinder to the gross misstatements and ignorance which your correspondent, signing himself "The Voice of Nicaragua," has exhibited in his last incendiary appeal, published in your paper of this date.

It is clear to any one who has ever visited Nicaragua, that the writer of this "Voice" if speaking, not from personal observation, but on the report of others—who are probably the fountains from which the malice that filters through his pen is drawn. It would be absurd to deny that there is some truth in these effusions—just enough to leaven the whole mass of falsehood, and make it pass current amongst those who know no better; but when he describes the John Ogden as a "mere flat-bottomed scow—top heavy and drawing only 18 inches of water," any one who has the least acquaintance with the subject treated of will know that he is writing of what he has never seen. The John Ogden is really one of the finest steamers on the river, and draws at least four feet of water; it would not be prudent, as a general thing, to cross the Lake in her—but not anything like such a desperate adventure of despairing men as your correspondent would make out. During the Summer months of the year, she would be as safe on the Lake as any of your Fall River floating palaces on the Sound.

I would point out other mistakes as gross as this, but his charge against the "three steamboat Commodores," as he calls them, are of more importance; and it is to the wholly baseless and vindictive character of these I would call your attention.

In all his former letters against WALKER, he made at least some show of facts and documents to support what purported to be his arguments. But here we have the bald assertion of an anonymous scribbler on one side, and the character of our most respectable, wealthy and enterprising merchants on the other. Shall we believe that such gentlemen as CHARLES MORGAN, CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, E. K. GARRISON, and Mr. GEORGE LAW, have actually been the promoters of the deplorable scenes that have taken place in Nicaragua, and all from no higher motive than a paltry desire to injure each other, or advance the price of the stocks in which they were respectively interested? The folly of entertaining such a supposition is all the refutation it requires.

Your correspondent, "The Voice," may have had—and doubtless had—some treacherous information of WALKER's real condition when he wrote the letters that appeared some four or five months ago over the same signature, and which would have been of no importance whatever, but for the answers which gentlemen of great influence and position on WALKER's side saw fit to make to them. But now, when he attempts to invade the quiet sanctity of commercial speculation, and wishes it to be understood that he knows "the secret history of this stock-jobbing in American blood," and holds out a threat that that history, if published, would implicate these gentlemen—as one who has been familiar with all the transactions from their inception, I hurl back the foul slander in his teeth, and dare him to bring forward a single fact or circumstance to show that either Messrs. VANDERBILT, MORGAN or LAW ever infringed the neutrality, or took any part whatever in the struggle by which their interests have suffered—except it was criminal in them to have done their best for peace and the best interests of humanity.

As "The Voice" does not give his name, though repeatedly challenged, he cannot call on me for mine, but I inclose my card for your private information and assurance. Meantime, whenever "The Voice" gives his name to the public, you are at liberty to publish mine; but until then, let me remain your obedient servant, IMPARTIAL.

MARINE MATTERS.

Mutineers Arrived.

The ship Centurion, Capt. CAULKINS, from St. Thomas, W. I., arrived at this port to-day, having on board the mutineers of the brig General Pierce, who murdered the Captain and crew of that vessel. They were delivered into the custody of the Deputy United States Marshal.

Clippers vs. The Steamers.

The Persia sailed yesterday with 169 passengers, and $606,366 94 in treasure. The clipper-ships Dreadnought and Typhoon sailed on Sunday last, and persons who have strong faith in the sailing qualities of the Dreadnought have made bets that with her four days' start, the clipper will beat England's fastest steamer in reaching Liverpool.

☞ There were in this port yesterday 609 vessels—including 38 steamers, 108 ships, 84 barks, 100 brigs and 285 schooners.

The French screw-steamer Cadix, Capt. ARMIANN, sailed at noon, yesterday, for Havre, in company with the Persia. She carried 6 passengers.

Navigation of the Hudson has been resumed once more, after two weeks' interruption, and finally for the season.

The Oregon and New World went up Tuesday evening; the Oregon reached Albany at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and the New World about noon.

The Isaac Newton, with a heavy load of freight, had not arrived at noon, yesterday.

The Hendrick Hudson, of the People's Line, and the Francis Skiddy, of the Troy Line, left at 6 o'clock last evening.

The ship News, Capt. HARN, arrived at Greenport on Wednesday morning, full of oil.

Naval.

FRIGATE MERRIMAC.

The Washington Union of Wednesday morning says:

"We were informed at the Navy Department that the United States steam-frigate Merrimac has arrived at Norfolk, Va. Purser THOMAS P. MCBLAIR, attached to this vessel, died on the 17th ult. of disease of the heart, and his remains were buried on the 18th ult. in the Episcopal Cemetery at Santa Cruz."

The Diamond Smuggling Case.

A beautiful young lady, who refused to give her name, appeared yesterday at the United States District-Attorney's Office to make intercession for MICHAEL B. POMEO and ANDREW B. POMEO, the two brothers mentioned in yesterday's TIMES as arrested on the day previous upon a charge of smuggling diamonds and other precious stones by the steamer Leopold I., recently arrived from Antwerp. She stated that the young men just arrested upon the above accusation belonged to one of the wealthiest and most respectable families in Holland. They had three brothers representing their own Government at the present time as Consuls at foreign ports. These young men, she insisted, had no idea of smuggling as a matter of business—they only brought with them a lot of wrought diamonds, and had no objection to escape payment of duties on them in the way such things generally were done. The only object in bringing the diamonds was to dispose of them in case of emergency for extra spending money. The young lady was very zealous to have the young men released from Eldridge-street jail. She could not promise the $5,000 bail required of each of them, and seemed to think this of small consequence, considering the high and honorable position they occupied at home. The only assurance the young lady received was, that upon the $5,000 bail being furnished the young men would be released from their prison confinement—and not otherwise.

The following are the particulars of the arrest of the Pomeo brothers: About a week ago information was sent to the office of the Chief of Police that two young men were offering for sale in the City a quantity of rough diamonds and rough precious stones, and that they were probably smuggled and stolen goods. Officer O'BRIEN, a detective, was told to look after the matter. He soon got on the track of the young men, and upon the pretence of desiring to purchase of them, was taken to their rooms, at No. 80 Rivington-street. The young men showed a large quantity of rough diamonds and rough rubies. As a final inducement to the pretended purchaser to buy them, they stated that they were offering them much below their real value, and that they were enabled to do so from having smuggled them upon the Leopold I., just arrived from Antwerp. They added that they greatly needed the money, and were compelled to sell them. The officer consummated the purchase, with the exception of paying for the goods, which he promised to do on the succeeding day.

On the day following this interview, Officer O'BRIEN called at the United States District-Attorney's office. The District-Attorney being absent, he communicated the facts he had learned to Mr. JAMES MESMAN, of the office. He was told by the latter to take a witness with him in order to have the facts we have stated corroborated. The officer, in compliance with the instructions given him, took the next day Officer BROWN, of the Chief's Office, with him to the room of the young men, where they again confessed the fact of the diamonds being smuggled. On some pretence Officer O'B. postponed again till the next day the promised payment for the diamonds. He called agreeably to his promise, but this time had in addition to Officer BROWN, Officer WHITE, of the Custom-House. They at once arrested the young men, and took possession of the diamonds and precious stones. The aggregate value of the diamonds seized are said to be worth in the neighborhood of $10,000, instead of $2,000, as originally reported. They are at present in the keeping of Mr. KEMPSHALL, the Collector.

The brothers POMEO were very much taken aback at perceiving the trap into which they had allowed themselves to be ensnared. They are well-dressed and gentlemanly-appearing young men, and say that their statement as to the smuggling of the diamonds was only a ruse to effect a ready sale. It is an established fact, according to officer O'BRIEN, that the young men came over in the Leopold I., and that no diamonds were entered on the steamer's manifest. An examination into the facts of the case is set down for next Tuesday.

INTERESTING FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, March 18.

The Cabinet dropped the considerations of Pennsylvania appointments yesterday, and took up the affairs of Kansas. The number of Philadelphia politicians multiplies in Pennsylvania every hour, and they bid fair to constitute soon the most important feature of the transient population of the Capital. While rival candidates from New-York preserve their equanimity and treat one another courteously, those from the Old Keystone look as savage as mad dogs, and will continue to do so until the affair of patronage shall have been settled. To-day, the Baltimore offices are before the Cabinet, and our Maryland friends are in a high state of externally-tranquil excitement.

The New-York appointments will be taken up on Monday. The State stands, at present, as follows: Of the twelve members of Congress, four, Messrs. TAYLOR, SEARING, CLARK and RUSSELL, are pledged to SCHELL; three, Messrs. HASKIN, SICKLES and MACLAY, are in favor of BUTTERWORTH; two, General WARD and JOHN COCHRANE, put forward Mr. ROYAL PHELPS; and the three others, KELLY, HATCH and CORNING, are as yet uncommitted. If the name of PHELPS is dropped, WARD is counted on for SCHELL, while COCHRANE, it is thought probable, will go for BUTTERWORTH. KELLY will oppose BUTTERWORTH under any and all circumstances. HATCH and CORNING will be governed in their action by the voice of their friends from the interior. I do not think, however, that they are likely to be brought into the support of SCHELL. The delegation from the interior, viz.: Messrs. RICHMOND, LUDLOW, Gov. CRUSOE, &c., &c., are, as yet, wholly uncommitted, and will remain so until to-morrow. The Herald dispatch in Monday's paper, that they are here to oppose SCHELL, or any one else, is untrue. They have had many conferences, but do not think it quite time to mature a decision in reference to the representations they should make to Mr. BUCHANAN. Mayor WOOD still seems to be neutral, and continues to declare that he considers it a duty to abstain from interference in the disposal of federal patronage. Perhaps he may at length throw his weight into the scale for one or the other of the rival candidates, which, it is thought, will settle the question. Your readers will be able, from this statement, to make their own calculations. I have none to make. In proportion to the exertions and representations of their friends, one or the other gentleman seems at different moments "ahead;" but every outsider may well be puzzled when it is known, as it is, that Mr. BUCHANAN's own brain (his health, by-the-bye, never was better) is confused by the din of the conflict which reaches him at the White House. The members of the Cabinet probably have their opinions on the subject, and may exercise some influence; but I am not yet prepared to say which way it is likely to go. I doubt whether they would, individually, be able to give a very adequate idea about the matter themselves.

As I have said, in a previous communication, the appointments of Surveyor and Naval Officer will depend upon that of Collector. Therefore it is wholly impossible to determine who will and who will not be taken for those positions. FOWLER will, nearly beyond a question, be reappointed Postmaster. He has the signatures for him of all the Democratic members of the New-York Congressional delegation, and Mayor WOOD has withdrawn his opposition. He has, moreover, no competitor whomsoever of any note or claim upon the party. It will therefore be necessary for Mr. BUCHANAN to make an exception in his favor to the rule of rotation in office.

Central American affairs bid fair to occupy a prominent place in the public eye for some time to come, but as far as England is concerned, the Mosquito doctrine will be the basis of the action of the Administration.

The course which the Government will pursue relative to Kansas matters may be safely prognosticated. LECOMPTE will be beheaded, and all influence kindred to that he has so benefully exercised will be hereafter discountenanced. Brown's Hotel swarms with bloody-eyed Missourians, whose present game is "poor pussy;" but they are thoroughly understood, and will totally fail in effecting their object. A delegation from among them have had an interview with Mr. BUCHANAN, and express much indignation at its result, or rather failure in resulting in anything. The fire-eating Pro-Slavery programme, to which Gov. GRAHY is opposed, is to call a Convention, between now and December, for the purpose of framing a State Constitution. Through Border-Ruffian tactics they calculate upon thus forcing upon the embryo State, upon Congress, and upon the country, a Slavery platform, against the will of the majority of the people of Kansas. Mr. Buchanan and his Cabinet will in no case countenance at the execution of this nefarious project. Governor GRAHY will be permitted to use his own discretion in sanctioning a Convention at such time as he may think that the will of the people can be fairly and uninterruptedly expressed, and then only will a Constitution be framed upon the basis of the Kansas-Nebraska bill.

The hotels are crowded, but, for want of proper reading rooms, the complaints are incessant that none of those papers can be found to which the public desire access. This should be remedied. At Willard's alone there are five hundred and odd guests, but no regular file of newspapers from any part of the country is to be found in their reading-rooms.

M. N.

[FROM OUR REGULAR TELEGRAPHIC REPORTER.]

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, March 18.

The corporate authorities of Washington paid a formal visit of respect to the President this afternoon, and were introduced to him by the Mayor. The President said he had resided in Washington many years; was partial to it; and had never received anything but kindness from its citizens. If Providence spared his life he hoped to continue to live with them on terms of harmony and good will. On parting he remarked, "Gentlemen, I would press you to remain if I had not some pressing friends awaiting my return up stairs."

The following appointments of Postmasters have been made: WILLIAM REED, Austin, Texas, vice R. T. JOHNSON, removed; W. J. WINEMAN, Huntsville, Ala., vice KAVANAGH, whose commission expires.

The following Postmasters have been reappointed: T. B. BIGGS, Richmond, Va.; T. L. TOULMIN, Mobile; and W. D. MARRAST, Tuscaloosa, Ala.

W. F. COLLOCK, whose commission as Collector of Customs at Charleston, S. C., expired yesterday, has been reappointed.

ARTHUR W. AUSTIN has been appointed Collector of Boston, vice PHAELEN. The friends of HOWLAND were sanguine to the last moment, and even now cannot admit his defeat.

WATSON FREEMAN has been reappointed U. S. Marshal for the District of Massachusetts.

CHARLES L. WOODBURY, United States Attorney for Massachusetts, vice HALLETT.

It is said that FLETCHER WEBSTER, Surveyor of the Port of Boston, and CHARLES G. GREENE, Naval-Officer, will be reappointed.

The pressure on the President from New-York, Philadelphia and Boston, has been so severe as nearly to prostrate him, as he has admitted to his friends. The Philadelphia appointments are still unsettled, and there have been fresh arrivals of politicians from that city to-day, on business connected with the subject.

No action will be taken at present on the subject of the Governorship of Utah.

The commissions of officers recently appointed, are being issued from the various Departments.

Orders have been issued to the steamer Merrimac, now at Norfolk, to proceed to Boston.

The Resignation of Gov. Geary.

Upon the subject of Governor GEARY's resignation, the Washington Star holds the following language:

"It is to be presumed that Governor GEARY's resignation must embarrass the Administration not a little. We know well that such an event would have greatly embarrassed its predecessor; and take it for granted, their views being understood to be identical with reference to Kansas affairs, that the present Administration will feel it equally difficult to replace him to its own satisfaction.

"It is understood that the position held by the Senate upon the question of executing the policy of the late administration, strengthened by the removal of Judge LECOMPTE, caused Governor G.'s resignation in consistence with his virtual request, Judge L. was removed, and the Senate refused to sanction that act by confirming his successor; but would they yield to repeated efforts to induce them to do so.

"In the meantime, Judge LECOMPTE disputes the right of President PIERCE to remove him, holds on to all the papers of his office, and, if we mistake not, exercises all, custodly some of the functions of the office; no successor having been confirmed and gone out to dispute his right to the office there on the spot. As deplorable as this state of things is, it would have been worse, far worse, indeed, were two judges assigned to discharging the functions of his office—holding courts, &c.—each backed by a large portion of the population, zealous in maintaining their alleged respective rights. What an immense amount of after litigation such a state of things would engender!

"We have an idea that Governor GEARY's resignation is in some respects conditional; that is, that it was not designed to be absolute, if the Administration could relieve him from Judge LECOMPTE, the Senate continuing its attitude on the subject matter. There is the rub, and a tough one it is, truly. The refusal of the Senate to confirm the nomination of President PIERCE, amounts to a denial on the part of that coordinate body of the power of the Executive to remove a territorial Judge, and is thus substantially sustaining Judge LECOMPTE in his refusal to vacate the office on the President's bidding.

It is believed on the avenue that this vexed question was the subject of most of the long and earnest Cabinet session of yesterday, and that it was determined if possible, to retain Governor GEARY; which, it will be remembered, was the policy of the Pierce Administration.

Interesting from Buenos Ayres.

PEACE WITH THE INDIANS OF THE SOUTH—TREATY CONCLUDED—IMPORTANT COMMERCIAL DECREE—ARRIVAL OF EMIGRANTS FROM IRELAND.

We have received files of papers from Buenos Ayres to the 17th of January.

Through the efficient action of General ESCALADA peace had been concluded with the Indians of the South. The British Packet, in its issue of Jan. 17, publishes the treaty ratified with the Indian caciques. The only concession granted by the Government is the recognition of a sort of territorial sovereignty to a tract of 400 square leagues in the district of Tapalquí—an arrangement that implies, on the part of the Indians, a tacit acknowledgment of the right of Buenos Ayres to all the rest of the territory of the State. Speaking of the importance of this treaty, the Packet says:

"After weighing every clause and every phrase, we have no hesitation in pronouncing it creditable, in the highest degree, to the worthy and venerable negotiator, who has crowned a long life of meritorious service by an act of patriotism and humanity that will safely transmit his name to the latest posterity. General ESCALADA, in our opinion, has made the most, the very most, of the circumstances in which he was placed, and the elements with which he had to act; and if the Convention can be carried out in its letter and spirit, the State of Buenos Ayres will long have cause to cherish and venerate his memory. As one of its most distinguished benefactors. With an energy, a patience and a perseverance above all praise, he has at last succeeded in interfering the thin side of the wedge, and if the policy so auspiciously initiated be carried out with good faith and constancy, we may pronounce the formidable Indian coalition of the South definitively broken up."

The Packet also publishes a decree establishing twelve months of deposit gratis in favor of goods intended for transit. The first article declares that from the date of the decree (Jan. 10, 1857,) merchandise manifested on its introduction for general deposit, and removed within the first twelve months of its deposit, shall be exempt from storage and porterage. The importance of this decree depends upon whether it is meant as a temporary or permanent measure. It is to be hoped that the latter is intended.

The Water Witch, British bark, had arrived at Buenos Ayres with a large number of Irish emigrants from Dublin.

Hon. J. GLANCY JONES arrived in Washington on Tuesday, and took apartments at the Kirkwood House. He is recovering from the severe indisposition which prostrated him a few weeks since.

THE VOICE OF COSTA RICA.

Gen. Walker's Position and Col. Lockridge's Success—A Reply to the "Voice of Nicaragua."

NEW-YORK, Tuesday, March 17, 1857.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

In your edition of this date, I notice an article from "The Voice of Nicaragua," and having been for a number of years a resident of that State, in which "The Voice" informs the public that the "American filibusters are spreading the infection of plague, pestilence and famine," and though their horrors may have unmercifully weakened my powers of observation, still they are not of sufficient strength to note the extraordinary geographical knowledge of Nicaragua, and the happy faculty of jumping at conclusions in its affairs, possessed by him who assumes to be its "Voice." I've no doubt but that he is, for we are told that "the tongue is an unruly member," and Nicaragua's must have become exceedingly unmanageable, when he allows it to describe the locality of the "Rapids of Machuca" as being a few miles above those of "Castillo," on the San Juan River. I am afraid her old enemy—"Aguardiente"—must have been making a recent present over this member of her mouth, when she permits it to proclaim the "Tauro Rapids as being a place of great natural strength." All this may be so. It will not do for us—once the recipient of Nicaragua's hospitality, (no famine about it, either,)—to dispute the veracity of its "Voice:" yet I must say, that when I left her soil, only a month since, the Machuca rapids were a long twelve miles below the "Castillo," and I'll guarantee that if the "Voice" had to foot it through the thickets from Machuca to Castillo, as I did once, he would swear it was a hundred.

The intention which "the Voice" attributes to the Costa Ricans, of placing a gun battery at the Tauro, is very probable; and in my opinion of their judgment in such matters, we may expect to find them attempting to dislodge the weakest spot on the river—as the Tauro certainly is. The stream at that point is so very wide as to form the long extent of shoal water which custom has incorrectly termed a rapid. The banks are so very low on both sides as to require earthworks of some importance to resist an assault from a party landing below for such purpose.

"The Voice" states that the news recently received from San Juan came through "filibuster agents." This may be so. But when we find this representative of Nicaragua rambling about in such a funny manner, on the banks of her principal stream, surely great allowance should be granted him, when, in his wanderings, he leaves his own soil. Therefore (with a due deference to his veracity still in view) I presume he was aware that the purser of the English steamer Trent is not a confirmed filibuster, nor is the editor of the Aspinwall Courier noted for his loyal attachment to WALKER and his cause.

But enough of this. Let me add something for the edification of "The Voice," in the hope that hereafter its tone may be improved.

The steamer Texas on Feb. 12 was at San Juan del Norte, ready at 8 A. M. for sea, but on the evening previous, a courier came down the river from Col. LOCKRIDGE, asking that the Texas might be detained until 2 P. M. of the 19th, as he was about to attack the position of the enemy at Serapiqui, and consequently desired to forward accounts of the result. The Texas waited until 3 P. M., and left without any further intelligence. At 6 P. M., same day, dispatches came from LOCKRIDGE. Serapiqui was in his possession; also a large quantity of rifles, ammunition, provisions, clothing ("The Voice" to the contrary notwithstanding) and dispatches which Gen. MORA had sent down that day, to be forwarded into Costa Rica by the Serapiqui, (the most expeditious route,) and in which he begged for immediate reinforcements and represented his position as very critical. These documents were written some time after the battle of St. George, and they show conclusively that engagements must have taken place to change so suddenly the tenor of his dispatches.

On the 16th the Texas came to San Juan, bringing an account of LOCKRIDGE's ascent up the river to Castillo, where he drove the enemy from their barricade on the road below the fort. The steamers Scott and Machuca were lying at the foot of the rapids—the latter on fire. LOCKRIDGE's men made a rush for the Scott, (which had not yet commenced to burn,) cut her moorings, and the strong current soon carried her out of harm's way.

They had, evidently, set fire to the Machuca, thinking it would soon extend to the Scott. As to the boats being smeared with tar and rosin, I can only say that of the former article there had been but one barrel in the country for months, and that was at Punta Arenas after the event described. So also with the rosin; the last importation was used in the process of binding the copper pipes, &c., when engines were placed in the Hacia, at Punta Arenas.

A small force of the enemy occupied the fort, which is not large enough to hold many, and which every resident of the country knows is perched on a high and very steep hill. Through the side running into the river the railroad was cut, and such a slice taken off, that one hundred men could stand upright on the road, entirely out of sight of those in the fort above, and affording every opportunity to mine under the hill. In the fort, not two hundred yards distant, is a hill completely commanding this fort, it is Serapiqui, with the earthworks still standing which the English, under LOCKE, threw up, and with the small-bore guns, were able to render the place too warm for the Spaniards, although the latter had five large brass pieces mounted on the walls.

The steamer Scott was taken in good condition, with the exception that one of her engines had a connecting rod broken. A new one was being made at Punta Arenas to replace it. No ammunition reached her. Her wood-work was only scathed with rifle shots.

The Scott and Wheeler were the two best boats on the river. The latter was at first supposed to have been blown up by the Costa Ricans, but is ascertained to have been the one sunk below Serapiqui; and when she is raised, a matter easily accomplished, the most valuable of the steamers will be ready for use.

The Morgan was going over the Castillo Rapids when the Rescue came in sight below. The Bulwer, a long time ago, was towed up the Serapiqui in a disabled condition by the enemy.

If "The Voice's" Costa Rican veterans (I expect he is one himself—and if he isn't, he ought to be) have any strong desire to return to Hippis' Point from their excursion in the woods at Serapiqui, they will meet at that place a good reception—a noisy one, at least. If "The Voice" knew Col. LOCKRIDGE, he would never have any fears of his leaving his work undone, nor as to his capabilities of carrying out contracts for clearing a dozen such rivers.

No! No! Mr. "Voice," if your friends only left for a tramp in the woods, intending soon to return, surely such veterans would have taken with them at least their blankets, for, I suppose you know, Nicaragua is a little damp. Now and then—rains occasionally, used to when I was there—their pantaloons too; they must need them. Perhaps all such things slipped their memories.

As I happen to have run over the Castillo Rapids, in the dead of night, in this same Rescue, and when she had not as much power as she has now, I would not be surprised to learn that Col. LOCKRIDGE did the same identical thing. And the Costa Rican, sleeping quietly on board the lake steamer, at anchor off Virgin Bay, or under Omotega's lee, must not be surprised if, on some fine, quiet night, he finds the little Rescue close alongside, popping his slides with three or four brass pieces. This might make "The Voice" grow rather faint, but might all be done, nevertheless.

As to WALKER's position on the Transit, I have only to say that the problem can be solved by the simple rule of three, for if WALKER, with less than 600 men, has twice defeated and dispersed two armies of 3,000 men in fortified cities, how long will it take him to defeat a force 1,200 strong, with the advantage, this time, of being himself in the fortress?

WALKER can leave HERMOSILLO in Rivas with 200 men, (his defence at Granada proves this,) and no force the enemy can bring could drive him out. The balance of his force (400) can be ranged over the whole Department, gathering forage of all kinds. If the enemy pursue, they have to do so with their full force, and all WALKER asks is to get them in the open field, where no churches or houses offer shelter, and when this does take place, the veteran Gen. CANAS will have another opportunity to try the bottom and speed of his horse, as he did at the last fight on the transit road, when he and his force were driven through San Juan del Sur on the full run, he himself only escaping from WALKER's rangers by being better mounted.

WALKER cannot be starved out of the Department while he holds the city of Rivas. The enemy will soon ascertain this and will be compelled to do something. If they besiege HERMOSILLO while WALKER is outside, the latter then falls upon their rear, and again an open fight is at hand.

Rivas and its vicinity, according to the last accounts, was very healthy; few men have died from sickness since the headquarters of the army have been located there. Those who have died were nearly all present at the siege of Granada, and suffered from the effects.

If the "Voice" remains still unsatisfied as to the truth of LOCKRIDGE's success, or WALKER's ability to maintain his position, let him keep quiet, until above the 19th inst., when the Tennessee's arrival will solve my RULE OF THREE.

THE CANADIAN RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Corrected Lists of Killed and Wounded.

Details of the Life of Mr. Zimmerman—His Funeral.

Our Canada exchanges come crowded with detailed accounts of the lamentable catastrophe on the Great Western Railroad.

The Toronto Colonist of Monday, gives the following corrected lists of the killed and wounded, added to which is a list of persons on board the wrecked train, who escaped without injury:

KILLED.

1. Samuel Street, merchant, Hamilton, formerly of the Parish of Cornthwaite, Dumfrieshire, Scotland.
2. A. Grant, Niagara Falls.
3. F. Russell, of firm of Morell, Mellish & Russell, of Brantford.
4. Mrs. Buck, wife of John Buck, in the employment of Thomas Moore, of Hamilton.
5. Joseph Burr, of Niagara. In the pocket book of this person was found a note due on Thursday, to Mr. Ashburnham, Toronto, for £345. Other memorandums were found that makes it certain who the person was.
6. — Boyle, Dumbarton.
7. James Gannon, a stout, light complexioned man, about 30 years of age, had on a grey undershirt—no other clothing.
8. Samuel Stevenson, Niagara Falls.
9. Samuel Bennett, Port Hope.
10. John Sharp, book vender, Hamilton dépôt.
11. Alfred Sawyer, Baptist minister, late of Nottingham, England, aged 35 years. He was on his return from a visit to some friends in the Great Western Railway, which was destroyed during the late conflagration from Wellington-square, where he had been officiating divine service.
12. — Hamilton, Hamilton.
13. Mary Hopkins, about 3 years old.
14. — Hall, girl, daughter of Mrs. Beck, of Hamilton.
15. — Hamilton, Hamilton, brother-in-law of Mr. Hamilton, Esq., Managing Director G. W. R. R.
16. Mr. Hunt, Brantford. The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Hunt were transported to Dickinson's City Hotel, where they were identified by friends and were then sent to Brantford. Their child was just returned from Europe, and Mr. Hunt had been to meet her.
17. — Smith, Stratford, 40 years of age.
19. Michael Glass, 2 years old, daughter of J. R. Glass, Hamilton.
20. — Mr. Heiss (German,) Clergyman Church of England, Hamilton.
21. — Ferrie, Jr., Hamilton, Barrister, eldest son of the late G. D. Ferrie, aged 24 years and six months.
22. A middle-aged man, dressed in gray, had a ticket for Toronto, stated to be Thomson Milton, a stage-driver.
23. — Ross, Gas Inspector, Toronto.
25. John Willard, miller. For the last nine months has resided at Dowling's Hotel, Hamilton. Is a native of Buckinghamshire, England. Has been out of employment since his arrival in this country, nine months ago. Watch found in his pocket numbered 4,[illegible] (Taylor, Maker, Hamilton.)
26. — Brentnell, engineer train. Neck apparently broken, and body injured; leaves wife and family.
27. Mr. Burton, Sen., Stratford, a very old and respectable man.
28. Robert Crawford, farmer, Saltfleet.
30. Hugh Molloy, merchant, St. Catharines.
31. Timothy Doyle, Dumbarton, shoemaker, husband of No. 6.
32. Patrick Doyle, brother of the above.
34. Charles Brown, of Galt, a relation of George Brown, Esq., of Toronto. Had been to attend his uncle's funeral at Toronto.
35. Charles Kendal, omnibus agent, Toronto.
37. John Bradfield, of the firm of Macnicken & Bradfield, Suspension Bridge, farmer and flour merchant, returning with his wife from a visit to Dr. Caldwell, the Toronto oculist, who identified them.
38. Ellen and Mary Devine. The two sisters were seated together, and were not separated. Their brother, ignorant of the catastrophe, came to meet them, and his anguish at the unexpected sight of the dead was great.
39. — Wade, Cobourg, Esquire.
40. — Wade, Cobourg. Mr. Wade was well known as a successful agriculturist and a public spirited man.
41. Colin Campbell, Nassagaweya.
42. Charles Caldwell, Albion.

17. Jos. Burns, collar-bone broken.
18. F. Bergnes, slightly hurt.
19. — Woods, Woodstock, arm broken.
20. — Barton, Jr., Stratford, head injured.
21. Owen Doyle, residence, Dumbarton.
22. — Urquhart, Express messenger on Line.

ESCAPED WITHOUT INJURY.

1. — Williams, brakeman.
2. W. W. Reid, suspension bridge.
3. — Hall, Toronto.
4. — Barrett, conductor of train.
5. — Muir, deputy superintendent on line.
6. — Jackson, Air-line Company.
7. — Richardson, conductor on line.
8. A female, of Hamilton, name unknown.
9. Master Darvin, Dumbarton, aged 8 years.
10. — Hill, Toronto.
11. Thomas Telfer, mail conductor.
12. ———, baggage master.
13. Henry August.

Of the persons stated to have been killed, several have been heard of. Captain Twohy and A. Heron, Esq., and Messrs. Mellish and Morrell, of Brantford, and Isaac Buchanan, Esq., we rejoice to say, were not on the train.

THE MISSING MAN.

We understand that Mr. Charles Lamond, who left York, Grand River, on the 5th inst., for this city, with a large sum of money on his person, and who was supposed to have been murdered, has been seen in Toronto.

INTERESTING PARTICULARS.

Mr. Thomas Telfer, mail conductor, who arrived in the city on Friday, says that as the train was approaching this fatal bridge he was standing by the ladies' apartment. Mr. Edward Richardson, conductor, was with him, and was lying on a bench. The last intimation they had that danger was at hand was the knocking of the wheels of the car against the ties, but before they could make an effort to escape they were buried with the car into the yawning abyss. Immediately the end of the car in which they had been seated partially protruded from the water, and they reached the door open they scrambled on top of the car, where they remained until a plank was passed to them, by means of which they reached the ice, and escaped with slightly bruised about the face and limbs, none seriously injured; he is likewise suffering from a bruise on his back and side, caused, he thinks, by his being jammed in the water. Mr. Richardson's injuries are not of a serious nature. He was on his way to Hamilton to bring his own train back.

The mail bags from the train cars were taken to the railway station, and pounded. There was not one left whole; even the stubbles were torn to pieces. The Government have given to the name of the accident this morning. The jury are now sitting in the Court-House.

Mr. Clarke, State Engineer of the State of New-York, and Thomas C. Keefer, Esq., Civil Engineer, were that morning, and left to examine if the bridge was built properly, as to the construction and stability of the bridge. Mr. Clarke was Chief Engineer of the road when the bridge was built.

A central plan for the identification of the dead has been adopted by Mr. Bateman: a corps of designers artists have been set to work to take likenesses of all such persons. For the most part these values are seen to be of the working class, young and middle-aged.

The Hamilton Spectator has originated a subscription, to be raised for the widows and orphans of the many poor men who have died so lamentably; and also a monument, to be raised in memory of the dead, and in sight of the fatal chasm.

The Great Western Railway Engineers have been at work continuously, day and night, since the accident occurred, making plans for a new bridge, which, it is said, will be commenced immediately and completed in a few weeks.

It seems that, notwithstanding the perpendicular position in which this car went down into the canal, most of the passengers retained their seats until the car struck the bottom. One gentleman, who is now no more, stated, on Saturday afternoon, that he and the rest all kept their seats, as it seemed to him, unaccountably. Although this circumstance admits of an easy explanation, according to natural laws, when the sudden shock occurred consequent on the termination of the leap of 60 feet, the seats were all jolted from their position. The gentleman alluded to said he was perfectly conscious of the seat above him, and its occupant, violently striking that on which he was, and breaking his back.

THE LIFE OF SAMUEL ZIMMERMAN—IMPOSING FUNERAL CEREMONIES.

A highly interesting sketch of the life of Samuel Zimmerman (one of the victims of this disaster,) is given in the Rochester Democrat of yesterday. Mr. Zimmerman was in the very prime and vigor of manhood—had but just commenced his career in public improvement—was upon the first step in a new and extended scheme of improvement for the benefit of the public. Regarding this man as in every sense worthy of public regard, we have ascertained some facts in his personal history, which will not be uninteresting to the general reader. He was born in Huntingdon County, Penn., in the year 1815, and spent his early years in that State. In 1834, he removed to the Canadian Province, having no capital but his own energy and farsightedness. He said to some persons who inquired of him respecting his commencement upon the line of enterprise which he has of late years followed so successfully, that his only effects, when he arrived in Canada, were a grey horse and a buggy. It might be supposed, as he himself added, that he possessed no more capital than he required for his immediate use. He was then but 27 years of age. He located at Thorold, and his first undertaking was the construction of four locks and an aqueduct on the Welland canal, which involved something like $100,000,000. Subsequently, he built, under contract, 120 miles of the Great Western Railway the contract price for which was about $600,000. The building of the first Suspension bridge at Niagara Falls, and of the Great Railroad bridge at the same place, engaged his attention and commanded his resources. He built the Cobourg & Peterboro, the Port Hope & Lindsay, and the Erie and Ontario railways in Canada. Mr. Zimmerman originated, and had just completed the preliminary arrangement for building a new road to the West, nearly parallel with the Great Western, to the South of that line, and on a shorter and better route. This work was to cost some ten millions of dollars. It is doubted whether any man possesses the energy and capacity to successfully assume a work which Providence has prevented him from carrying forward. By this fiat of the All-Wise, thousands of men, who were in a measure dependent upon him as their leader, and in some sense the arbiter of their fortunes, will be stopped short in their actual and contemplated pursuits. It can well be conceived that there is sincere mourning in Canada and everywhere, wherever the far reaching plans of this "Railway King" extended.

Not long since he had purchased a large property at Clifton, Niagara Falls, and in the vicinity of the Suspension Bridge, including the fine hotel known as the "Clifton House," and his excellent taste and liberal ideas were illustrated in improving this fine estate and adorning it artistically. Fifty-two acres on the Cliff directly opposite the American Falls, are enclosed with an iron fence and privet hedge. The topography of these grounds is diversified and picturesque. That part nearest the river is level, and this is laid out in gravelled walks, with shrubbery, forest trees and fountains. One fountain was constructed at a cost of $15,000.

These groves and shaded promenades are lighted during the Summer evenings with gas. The proprietor's residence stands on a bluff some sixty feet high, midway of the ample grounds. In the Summer it is nearly hidden by the foliage of the surrounding trees. This dwelling is an unpretending mansion, but has always been the scene of generous hospitality, while occupied by its princely owner, who has just been carried from it to his long home.

He had perfected the most extended and elaborate plans for the establishment near the same spot of an elegant mansion-house, with the proper accessories and surroundings. The foundations of a building of Cleveland sandstone and Canadian brick, to cost $175,000, were laid last year, and the work was to be prosecuted immediately. His lodges, of which there are four, the conservatory, and tenements for his servants, are models of taste. His stables, completed last year, cost $48,000. From the terraces on the grounds and the portico of his dwelling, a splendid view of the American Fall is obtained.

The Clifton House is near by—one of the most complete and popular hotels that any watering place can boast. This was owned by Mr. Zimmerman, and was worth over $300,000.

At Elgin, on the Western side of the river, at the Suspension Bridge, the deceased formerly owned a large property, which his own liberal expenditure and judicious enterprise had rendered very valuable. This was sold last year to his friends, Messrs. Peabody and Benedict, for $200,000. At Toronto, he owned property valued at $400,000. At Hamilton, an estate worth $100,000. He was owner of the steamer Zimmerman, on Lake Ontario, and half owner of another boat, the Peerless—his interest in both amounting probably to $100,000. Some 18,000 acres of land, in different parts of Canada, belonged to him. He estimated his property to be worth three millions of dollars.

Mr. Zimmerman has been twice married. His first wife was Miss Woodruff, the only daughter of a worthy and influential man at St. Davids, near Niagara Falls. This lady bore him two sons, who are still living—John, aged 8 years, and Richard, aged 6. She died in November, 1854. On the 15th December last, he was married to Miss Dunn, of Three Rivers, C. W. The deceased was a man of limited education, but he was endowed with sterling mental gifts.

An unmarried sister died of consumption in August last, and was buried in the family cemetery. Four elder brothers still reside in Pennsylvania. The parents are not living.

The brothers, Martin and James, both younger than the deceased, have been associated with him here. They will succeed him in some of his enterprises.

We understand that Mr. Zimmerman had made a will previous to his death, and chosen his executors.

From the marks upon the head, it was evident that the deceased was precipitated head downward, and was killed by the fall. The injuries are entirely upon that portion of the body. The face was so swollen and distorted that the coffin was not opened at the funeral. There was no sign of decay about the corpse, up to the time when the remains were interred.

A handsome rosewood coffin, mounted with solid silver and lined with satin, was prepared by Mr. Merriam, of Chippewa, undertaker. This was encased in lead, and hermetically sealed, and an outside shell of pine was over all.

It had been resolved to bury the deceased in the family vault of St. Davids, where his former wife reposes. But his friends subsequently determined to inter him in the midst of the grounds which he had adorned, and upon which he delighted to exhibit his refined taste and lavish his wealth. A temporary vault was accordingly constructed at the foot of the cliff immediately below the mansion, and here the body was deposited.

His brothers intend to construct a vault upon the high grounds immediately north of his late residence, and erect there a suitable monument to his memory.

THE OBSEQUIES.

Mr. Zimmerman was a member of the Masonic Fraternity, and a Knight Templar. He loved the Order, had taken its highest degrees, and was its liberal patron. The brethren were moved to express their sorrow for his death. Accordingly the Knights Templars and other Masons prepared to attend the obsequies, and bury their deceased brother with all the honors of the Order.

The hearse was drawn by four black horses, and was followed by the mourners in carriages—the sons and brothers of deceased, his connections by marriage, and immediate personal friends, among whom were Messrs. R. G. Bennett and G. R. Babbitt.

The procession moved from the house down to the Southeastern Lodge, where it entered the grounds, the body being removed from the hearse, and borne by the St. George's Lodge, as before, the bands playing dirges while the cortège was in motion.

The Grand High Priest, Grand Master Ridgey, and Eminent Commander Durfee headed the procession, followed by the St. George's Lodge bearing the body, the Knights Templars, &c., who approached the grave between the open ranks of the lower degrees—the procession moving to and from the house in inverse order.

At the tomb, the Masons formed a circle about the vault, while the ceremonies of the Church and the ritual of the order were observed.

A sprig of evergreen, or cassia, emblem of faith in the immortality of the soul, was then deposited in the grave, and the brethren then moved in procession about the vault, and each has he passed deposited the slip of evergreen, saying: "This, I deposit in remembrance of my deceased brother, and in token of my firm belief in his glorious resurrection and immortality."

The grand honors were then given and an address by the priest and a prayer by one of clergymen present, concluded the ceremonies at the grave, and the procession was then broken up, and the Fraternity returned to their homes, leaving the dead in its silent abode.

A very large concourse of people came by the cars from Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara, and other places in Canada, and from Lockport, Buffalo and Niagara Falls, to witness these solemn and imposing obsequies. Many came also, in their own carriages, and although the day was somewhat inclement, there were many women and children in the assembled crowds. All will remember it as a marked day in their calendar.

The Clifton House was thrown open to all who came, and the hospitalities of that hotel were quite generously shown toward the sympathizing people.

TRINITY CHURCH MATTERS.

Bishop Potter's Evidence Before the Committee of the Assembly.

Rev. Horatio Potter called and sworn.

Q.—What is your office? A.—I hold the office in the Protestant Episcopal Church? A.—My present residence is in the City of New-York; my office is Provisional Bishop of the Diocese of New-York.

Q.—What opportunities do your official position and duties afford you for obtaining information in regard to the condition, wants and interests of the various congregations in your Diocese? A.—It is made my duty by canon to visit periodically all the parishes of the Diocese, and inquire into their condition, and to maintain at all times general superintendence over the churches of the Diocese. To which I may add that persons belonging to the several parishes naturally come to me for advice and direction.

Q.—Has the law of 1814 in regard to Trinity Church been acquiesced in or not? A.—I think it has been generally, no person has appeared in the Courts to object to its constitutionality; had there been any real confidence in the existence of a right in members of other and independent congregations to be corporators of Trinity Church, undoubtedly that right would have been asserted and maintained in the Courts, both before and after 1814; for more than 30 years after the passage of the law of 1814 no attempt was made to procure its repeal; there might be cases of individual discontent, as there will be with things most just and reasonable, but they were of no account compared with the general acquiescence and the absence of all former attempts either in the Courts or before the Legislature to object.

Q.—What, in your opinion, would be the effect of throwing open the Corporation of Trinity Church, and allowing all persons in New-York, in communion with the Protestant Episcopal Church, to become corporators in that body? A.—The effect would be disastrous in very many ways: in the first place, as it would be, in my opinion, a violation of the original meaning and intent of the charter, a meaning and intent recognized and admitted for fifty years, it would constitute an act of public fraud and immorality, so gross as to be of evil influence throughout the whole country; but, besides that, the immediate operation in the City of New York would be extremely injurious to the peace and well being of the church; all the parishes in the City would be brought into conflict with Trinity Church and with each other. Trinity Church is a parish like any other in the City, except as to the amount of its wealth. Persons who were corporators in an independant parish, having its own peculiar interests and objects, would be corporators also in Trinity Church, where they would be present by their representatives to embarrass and control her parochial operations, and to take from her her means for their own purposes; such foreign corporators might, and I believe would, have selfish reasons for desiring to cripple the parochial work of Trinity Church, while they sought to build up rival churches of their own.

Under such a system, Trinity Church would soon cease to be a parish, in the ordinary sense of the term. Her parochial work would be reduced and totally ruined; and she would become the mere holder of a fund, a mere financial body, for whose wealth many thousands of persons, cut up into conflicting and rival sections, would be scrambling. The annual elections would present a scene most grossly unbecoming, highly injurious to the character of the Church and to the interests of religion, for those elections would be sure to be severely contested elections, where several thousand persons would have a right to vote, and where there would be great temptation among the outstanding congregations to swell the number of their voters by all sorts of means. There would be a temptation to unfair combinations among different parishes and sections of the City to procure grants in favor of each other. All this would be a perfect anomaly in the Episcopal Church. I know of no cases in which the same person is corporator in the different parishes, the parishes being in a position to be rivals to each other. There are instances, probably, in which a person is a corporator in a city parish and also in a rural parish, where he has his country residence; but this is attended with no serious evil. In every system, whether of the family, the State, or the church, where a person is present within, to influence, to control, he is supposed to be a member of the system, with a kindly interest in it, with a generous devotion to its welfare, and subject to all its laws and authorities. But if the Corporation of Trinity Church were thrown open, you would probably have vestrymen present to vote away its money, to control its counsels, who were enemies and aliens; interested in other parishes, but not in Trinity Church; not subject to its rector, not under its religious influence, but present only to vex and harass. This is not only a violation of all the principles of the Church, which require that every person present in a parish with any rights and privileges, shall be amenable to the spiritual authority of the rector, but is a violation of common sense, which requires that those who vote or rule in a body shall be bona fide members of it, and owe it a hearty allegiance.

Q.—What is your view in regard to the course of Trinity Church in rebuilding Trinity Church at the head of Wall-street, and in building Trinity Chapel in Twenty-fifth street? A.—I think it was a very proper course. It was natural they should desire to retain the old site down town, so long endeared to them, and it was very important that the lower part of the City, which was in a way to be abandoned by all the other Episcopal congregations, should not be abandoned by them. They owe it to the lower part of the City to maintain themselves there, among the poor, and their property enabled them to do so. In regard to the building of Trinity Chapel, up-town, many of the old parishioners had moved far up town, with only very moderate means, in many cases, and it seemed the duty of Trinity Church to follow them and provide for them, and to seek to retain them as her parishioners. The erection of Trinity Chapel was, therefore, a proper measure. As to the costly character of the two edifices, I consider that Trinity Church only did her duty in making them models of ecclesiastical architecture. Her wealth had been created mainly by the growth of the City. She therefore owed to the City some contribution in the way of beautiful and magnificent edifices. And with her wealth, she owed it equally to the character of her own communion. Had Trinity Church, with its means, limited itself to the erection of buildings of a moderate cost, I have no doubt the parish would have been severely censured, both by the church and by the community generally. As a general thing, I believe a few costly churches are of great utility to the interests of religion. I have no doubt that Westminster Abbey has, in the course of ages, been worth to the influence of divine truth in the world vastly more than all that it ever cost.

Q.—What is your opinion of the effect of the course of Trinity Church, in giving her aid to churches in the form of loans upon mortgages, rather than in the form of absolute grants? A.—Those loans were absolute grants in reality; nobody ever supposed that the interest or the principal would be called for by Trinity Church. They never have been, in a single instance, although the cases have been very numerous, in which land mortgages have been given. When I consecrate a church I always wish to know whether there be any debt. I never regard a mortgage given to Trinity Church in the light of a debt. I have never perceived, I do not believe, that such mortgages in any way affect the independence of ministers or laymen. It is very common, indeed, to see the minister and laymen of a Church, subject to a mortgage, voting against measures favored by Trinity Church. In convention, I doubt whether any one remembers or reflects whether mortgages exist in particular quarters or not. The effect of these mortgages has, I have no doubt, been important in preventing the property of churches from being sold and alienated from their sacred use. And this, I have always understood, was the sole object of Trinity Church in requiring them.

Q.—St. Matthew's Church in New-York has been recently closed. Was it the duty of Trinity Church under the circumstances, to have prevented that result? A.—I cannot say, that, under all the circumstances of the case, I would have advised Trinity Church to do differently from what she has done.

Q.—What is your view of the past management of Trinity Church in relation to the poor? A.—Trinity Church has done a great deal for the poor in many ways—She has provided free education for the poor, in schools and colleges—She has assisted in the erection of between one and two hundred (nearly two hundred) churches in the State. To say the least, a very large portion of all these grants must be considered as assistance granted to those who had not the means of doing all for themselves. She has granted annuities in many cases to aged clergymen and to the widows and orphans of deceased clergymen. She has schools for poor children connected with several of her churches and chapels. And finally, all her churches, down town, Trinity Church, St. Paul's, St. John's, and Old St. George's, supported by her, are, to a very large extent, in the nature of a free provision for the poor. And besides these, there are several other churches, situated in districts much occupied by the poor, which are largely assisted by Trinity Church.

Q.—It is alleged that in some districts of New-York there is a want of adequate religious provision for the poor; can you state any facts bearing upon this matter? A.—Some portions of the City are chiefly occupied by Germans; other inhabitants remove from those sections. These are, consequently, fewer persons than we might at first suppose capable of being gathered into Episcopal congregations. There may be, and probably is, after all, a deficiency of church accommodation, but it is not as great in some quarters as it seems to be.

By the Committee.—Q.—Do you think in seeking to retain the parishioners in Trinity Chapel, it was right to seek to cut them off as corporators? A.—I have not understood that it was contemplated by Trinity Church to cut off her parishioners as corporators. In the abstract I should say it would not be right to do so. I supposed it was intended to prevent a rush of strangers from coming in and making themselves corporators from interested motives.

Q.—Did you ever see the lease under which the pews in Trinity Chapel were leased? A.—I have not. (Lease shown the witness.)

Q.—After examining the lease, do you not think it would cut them off as corporators? A.—It seems to do so, Sir.

Q.—What appropriations were made by Trinity Church, for three years previous to April, 1856, to institutions of charity, benevolence or learning in the City of New-York? A.—I have been in the City of New-York only a portion of that time, about a year and three or four months, and I am only generally cognizant of the fact that Trinity Church has been continually making grants to one object and another, without fixing my attention to any in particular. I cannot say whether the grants here referred to are included in the grants that have been made.

Q.—Can you mention any appropriations of the kind spoken of, made at any time, and if so, at what time, and what were they? A.—I know that grants have been made to Columbia College, and I believe to Trinity School. I am not able to answer fully and specifically the time. I may be permitted to state that my attention has been more particularly directed to grants at large for church purposes than to those of a local character.

Q.—Can you say that you know of any such appropriations made within the last ten or twenty years? A.—I cannot say that I can.

Q.—You answer the first question, that the law of 1814 has been acquiesced in; has it been by the church in the City of New-York generally, outside of Trinity? A.—My impression is, that until within a recent period, twelve or fifteen years, it has been.

Q.—During that twelve or fifteen years, has not the great body of the Episcopal Church, outside of Trinity, in the City of New York, been dissatisfied with the law of 1814? A.—I should not think so; but, as I said before, my acquaintance with New-York, until within a year or two, has been only a very general one, and my opinion is partly formed from what I have known myself, and partly an inference from the absence of any formal attempt to controvert the law.

Q.—Previous to the law of 1814, did, or did not the inhabitants of New-York, in communion with the Protestant Episcopal Church, outside of Trinity, exercise and enjoy the right of voting for wardens and vestrymen of Trinity Church? A.—I have always understood that they did not.

Q.—Do you not understand that right to have been guaranteed under the charter to those in communion with the Church, and not belonging to the parish of Trinity Church, in the City of New-York? A.—I do not. I may add, that the charter of my own late parish, St. Peter's, Albany, is in the same terms, and was never held to guarantee rights to any one outside the parish. When the second congregation was formed, St. Paul's, in this city, (Albany,) St. Peter's Church, having such a charter, had property, to which the members of St. Paul's Church never set up any claim.

Q.—What difficulties would arrise in each of the Episcopal churches in the City of New-York, sending a delegate to a Convention to choose Wardens and Vestrymen to take care of the fund now administered by Trinity Church? A.—I think it would be possible to suggest many difficulties of detail. But I have a general answer. The Church is governed in accordance with long-tried, well-settled, traditional principles and practices, the precise nature of which is thoroughly understood from long experience. The system suggested would be an entire anomaly in the Church, both in this country and in England, and I should think a very dangerous one to adopt.

Q.—What has the government of the Church to do with the administration of this fund? A.—The Church known of no distinction between the administration of church funds and matters purely spiritual. They are all part and parcel of the same system. She does not know of money in any secular sense. I may add, in the case of every known church in this country and in England, the same body that regulates the spiritual concerns of a parish, regulates also its church fund as a religious act.

Q.—Is not the administration of this fund entirely and absolutely separate from all the religious and ecclesiastical care of the Church as a religious society? A.—I think not.

Q.—Wherein does she exercise any control? A.—The immediate disposal of this fund is ordered in the presence of and by the rector, wardens, and vestrymen of the parish. They are both immediately responsible to me as the Bishop of the diocese, and are amenable to the Church of this diocese assembled in Convention. I do not mean, however, to be understood that I supervise the details of appropriations, or that my assent is essential to the validity of any grants by the vestry.

Q.—Is not the care of the bishop, rector, wardens and vestrymen, theoretical, and the practical care of this fund entrusted to a committee of the wardens and vestrymen? A.—I think the care of the bishop, rector, wardens and vestrymen is not theoretical, but practical, though the bishop, of course, is not a member of this body, and has only a general oversight over the affairs of the church. As in any large body, which in this case amounts to twenty-three persons, there is a sub-committee which, however, takes cognizance not merely of money matters, but of matters bearing upon the spiritual well-being of the parish, and which committee is appointed for the convenience of arranging and preparing business for the full meeting of the vestry, when it is deliberately passed upon. And I have to say, furthermore, that the care of the bishop and the rector is a reality, inasmuch as if the members of the vestry violated their duty they would be subject to be admonished and disciplined by the rector, and if they and the rector together, either or both, clearly violated their duty so as to be adjudged guilty of an offence capable of being made evident to me or the bishop, they would certainly be liable to be disciplined by him.

Q.—Do the Wardens and Vestrymen of Trinity Church report to the Bishop or to the convention their action in relation to grants or aid to Churches, or in relation to their general affairs? A.—They do not formally make a full report of all grants, but from the interest which attaches to the affairs of that parish, I believe its internal business is better known to the Bishop and Church at large, than the affairs of any other wealthy Episcopal congregation in the City of New-York. I am not aware that there is any concealment.

Q.—Do they make an informal report? A.—Various reports have been made at different times of the grants of Trinity Church, and I believe their proceedings generally transpire speedily. In some instances action is reported to me immediately.

Q.—If they make no report to you, how have you any supervision over their affairs, except theoretically? A.—The general course of the administration of affairs in the parish is well known. I presume it will be found that in every year the receipts and the expenditures of the parish are known to a very considerable number of persons most interested.

Q.—Have you any knowledge whatever of the managed affairs of Trinity Church? A.—I have only a general knowledge of those of my parish.

Q.—What greater reason was there for abandoning the church at the Five Points, and Christ Church, than for abandoning Trinity Church at the head of Wall-street? A.—The church at the Five Points and Christ Church were independent parishes, and moved, I presume, by their own option to a more eligible portion of the City. Trinity Church might have moved to a more eligible portion of the City, so far as the character of her worshipers, for wealth, were concerned; but preferred to retain a very old site, the oldest I believe in the City, and to continue to exercise her ministry in that very destitute portion of the City.

Q.—Were there not as strong reasons for retaining Zion Church at the Five Points, as there were for retaining Trinity upon her site? A.—I was not as well acquainted with the position of Zion Church in those days as with that of Trinity, and it may have been very desirable that a church should have been retained in the place of Zion Church.

Q.—Is or is not the effect of making loans to churches and taking back bonds and mortgages for the money so loaned, to cause the churches thus receiving loans to vote in convention for the particular views Trinity Church espouses? A.—I can only judge from my own experience and observation, and so judging should think not. I can recall many cases where such mortgages exist, and where the rector and the lay delegates quite habitually vote on a side different from Trinity Church. My attention has never been called to any case where the independence of the rector and laity seemed to have been impaired in consequence of the existence of any mortgage.

Q.—Do or do you not know that in the grants of Trinity Church, she aids ten churches classed as "high church," where she aids one of opposite views? A.—I do not know that she does; it may seem strange, but I never have looked at the grants of Trinity Church to see how that was.

Q.—Can you state the comparative number of the congregation known as "high church" in this diocese, and those known of the opposite character? A.—I can suppose that there are many congregations that would not care to have either term applied; but if the line were to be strictly drawn, including on one side or the other every congregation, I suppose there would be five or six of the "high church" to one of the "low."

Q.—What is the proportion in the City of New-York? A.—I am not so well-informed in regard to the City of New-York as in regard to the whole diocese, because a general vote is sometimes taken in convention showing the comparative numbers in the whole diocese, but nothing of the same kind occurs to show the proportion in the City, yet I have no doubt that the proportion of what would be called "low church" in the City is somewhat larger than in the diocese generally.

Q.—Was there not a time in the City of New-York, when all Episcopalians in that City had a right to vote at the elections of Trinity Church? A.—I am not aware that there was any such time, unless it was at a very early period when all Episcopalians were members of that parish.

Q.—What greater difficulty would there be in managing a larger property of the Church through the Convention, than there is managing the Episcopal Fund? A.—So that they were rightfully possessed of a large property, I think they might be able to manage it.

By Counsel for Trinity Church.—Say, whether there is not, necessarily, a most intimate connection between the spiritual and financial affairs of a parish, growing out of the fact, that the funds are to be applied with reference to spiritual interests? A.—Undoubtedly.

Q.—Had Trinity any control over the removal of Zion Church from the Five Points, or Christ Church from Anthony-street? A.—I am not aware that she had.

Q.—If it be true that, in eight out of the past ten years, an average of hardly one in ten of the corporators of Trinity Church appeared at the vestry elections of Trinity Church, is this a state of things peculiar to that parish, and does it indicate "torpor?" A.—It is quite the ordinary condition of things throughout the diocese, I should think. It is generally rather a favorable indication, than otherwise, implying satisfaction with the administration of the affairs. As a general thing, throughout the diocese, and throughout the country, probably you will find a few voters present, unless there is some trouble.

Q.—How was it during the twenty-two years that you were Rector of St. Peter's Church in Albany? A.—I suppose, out of one hundred and twenty-five or one hundred and thirty corporators, there were, on an average, from six to ten persons present at annual vestry meetings.

Q.—Do you think that Trinity Church has done its utmost to make the capital of the property of that Corporation available for the founding, support, or promotion of religious, charitable, or educational institutions or purposes? A.—It is a very difficult question for any one to answer. I have had some plans that I have wished and intend to propose to the Rector and Vestry of Trinity Church, but I was met, in turning the matter in my own mind, on the ground with the fact that Trinity Church has a revenue between [illegible] and [illegible].

[illegible]

Q.—Can you state the number of persons who are [illegible] in the City of New-York? A.—I cannot state the number of persons who are [illegible] in the City of New-York.

Q.—Do you know any such appropriations made within the last ten or twenty years? A.—I cannot say that I can.

Q.—You answer the first question, that the law of 1814 has been acquiesced in; has it been by the church in the City of New-York generally, outside of Trinity? A.—My impression is, that until within a recent period, twelve or fifteen years, it has been.

Q.—Do the Wardens and Vestrymen of Trinity Church report to the Bishop or to the convention their action in relation to grants or aid to Churches, or in relation to their general affairs? A.—They do not formally make a full report of all grants, but from the interest which attaches to the affairs of that parish,

LAURA KEENE'S NEW THEATRE,
No. 624 Broadway, near Houston-st.
Miss Laura Keene.....Sole Lessee and Directress.
Performances commence with the Overture at 7½ o'clock.
THURSDAY EVENING, March 19, 1857,
THE ELVES;
OR,
THE STATUE BRIDE.
By CHARLES SELBY, Esq.,
performed in London with unexampled success.
Lesson.—The mountain forests of Pannonia are said to be inhabited by elves, who delight to entrap travelers into their realms and torment them with their mischievous antics. Having the power of transferring their spirit, they often, in their malicious gambols, give life to the newly dead. Statues, rocks and trees may be seen moving in the forest; but it is only during the day they retain their fictitious existence. On the approach of night they resume their immobility.
Seventh night of
THE BLACK BOOK,
One of the greatest hits of the season.
Wolf.....Mr George Jordan
To be followed by THE ELVES; Or, THE STATUE BRIDE, produced with new scenery, costumes, properties and mechanical effects.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The steamship Alps is now in her fifteenth day out. A dispatch from Boston last night, telegraphed at 10 o'clock, stated that she had not been reported up to that time.

Buenos Ayres papers of Jan. 17, received yesterday, contain news of interest. Peace had been concluded with the Indians of the South, and, through the efficient services of Gen. ESCARAMA, a treaty had been ratified, which breaks up the formidable Indian coalition that has disturbed, for so long, the peace of the Republic. An important decree had been issued, establishing twelve months of deposit gratis in favor of goods intended for re-export. Large numbers of Irish emigrants had arrived in Buenos Ayres.

In the State Senate yesterday, the bill to consolidate the cities of New-York and Brooklyn under one Municipal Government, was reported favorably. In the Assembly, the New-York City Charter bill was reported complete from the Committee on Cities and Villages, and adopted after debate, and the rejection of the minority report, by 68 against 30. There was no other business of special importance.

The Canal Board, at a meeting held yesterday, adopted the policy of discriminating tolls as advocated in the report of the Committee appointed to consider the subject—the first vote being five to two. Commissioner FITZGERALD warmly opposed the project. The policy of tolling the railroads was also indorsed.

A railroad accident, similar to the one which recently occurred at the Des Jardines Canal, near Hamilton, Canada, though not accompanied by [illegible]

An affray occurred at a foundry in Troy, yesterday, between JOHN ALLEN and HUGH DONNELLY, in which the former killed the latter with a hammer, and made his escape.

The meat markets have been pretty well supplied for the past week, with the exception of mutton, which is scarce and higher. The receipts of brutes for the week ending yesterday numbered 8,872, which is but a little below the weekly average for 1856, and more than is required during the Lent season. Prices of beef cattle declined abou[illegible] per lb. net, yesterday, and about 200 were left over last evening.

Alderman CLANCY still rules over us as Mayor pro tem., the late Mayor FERNANDO WOOD having telegraphed yesterday that he can't leave Washington to reach here before Saturday. Whether he intends to meet Mr. ESLING, who stands ready to compel him by law to surrender the abstracted checks that were to have paid the workmen in Mr. HAZEN's department, or has national reasons, does not appear. Meanwhile, the holders of old claims against the City, contracted under the resolution of the Councilmen, and unauthorized by the Aldermen, make hay while CLANCY's sun shines. We saw two bills yesterday from a brass band for Fourth of July music, with the acting Mayor's signature, going to Bank to be cashed—which Mayor WOOD had refused to sign in his day. These same bills had been offered, without success, at 25 per cent. discount.

The Alderman's Special Committee on the projects for the relief of Broadway, met again yesterday afternoon, and there were a large number of property owners in attendance. Mr. GERARDUS [illegible] stated in favor of the Greene-street project. [illegible] of opinion that it would be desirable to have a State University built, at [illegible] expense, thereby avoiding opposition [illegible] Washington-square. He thought the Washington-square was intended to be a public park, and could not therefore be taken lawfully. He recommended the opening of Wooster-street to Canal, and continuing this route through Church, instead of West Broadway. Prof. REDFIELD, Mr. [illegible] also offered opinions in connection with the subject, and then the Committee adjourned.

The Committee on Railroads, Alderman McCORMICK in the Chair, met yesterday afternoon, when they had under consideration the question of running the large freight and passenger cars of the Harlem Railroad Company below Twenty-seventh-street. General SANDFORD appeared for the Railroad, and said the Company did not purpose to alter the T rail, and put down their entire rail; but they were willing, after the question of their new depôt, to stop running passenger cars below Twenty-seventh-street, and [illegible] run freight cars to the White-street depôt only before night. He thought the depôt would be completed in July next. Remarks were made by [illegible]

[illegible] Committee adjourned.

The only thing of public interest at the Board of Councilmen last evening, was the passage of a resolution which just doubles their salary. Councilman McCARTHY, who has generally no tender solicitude for the integrity of the public purse, changed his vote on this question, otherwise the measure would have been lost. Rather laborious. The adjournment is to the first Monday in April.

The swindling of passengers bound for California by the George Law, which sails to-morrow, goes on vigorously this week. We have reported in another column a list of the victims, and shall have a longer one to-morrow, we fear. If there is any virtue in a police that costs $670,000 a year, let's have it tried on now.

The long examination of Ex-Consul FARRAS and Capt. BOURON, arrested as Illibusters for Nicaragua, was closed yesterday, by the decision of Commissioner MORRIL that the accused were guilty of enlisting soldiers for Gen. WALKER. This case now goes to the Grand Jury, and the prisoners go about the streets on bail. Capt. B. was in good spirits, in view of the fact that his bail-bonds were deemed satisfactory; for going to Eldridge-street Jail is very unprofitable. The unlucky prisoner who has the liberty of its kitchen has to pay $10 a week, in advance, for his board; and if luckily he is discharged after a single night's detention, there is no refunding of the advance.

The brothers TAYLOR, the Chatham-street brokers who were arrested some time since for selling spurious bank-bills, and who were dismissed from arrest by Judge RUSSELL, before whom the case was brought on a certiorari, have been indicted by the Grand Jury for the alleged offence for which they were first taken in custody, but have not been yet rearrested—no warrant having been issued by the City Judge. Thus this very singular matter will be again brought before the Courts, on the question whether brokers or others have a legal right to keep and sell, in large and small quantities to suit, bank-bills avowedly spurious and counterfeit.

The Ponso brothers, arrested on a charge of smuggling diamonds, were represented by a young lady yesterday at the United States District-Attorney's office as belonging to one of the wealthiest and most respectable families in Holland. The young lady pleaded hard for their release from Eldridge-street jail, but the inexorable Attorney insisted on the $5,000 bail first. It not being furnished, the young men still remain in durance vile—$10 a week advance if the privilege of the kitchen is given—to await examination on Tuesday next.

JOHN DEAN, the coachman, has not, it seems, "gone West," nor has he yet effected the liberation of his wife (late Miss BOKEE) from the care of her father, who, it seems, had resolved on sending her to Europe—and, with this view, attempted on Tuesday night to put her on board the Persia. But Mr. DEAN was on the alert, and, by the aid of his counsel and Capt. McKEE, of the Sixteenth Ward Police, prevented his wife from being transported.

A gentleman just arrived from Boston, where he belongs, was set upon by three highwaymen in Broadway, near Pearl-street, about 1 o'clock yesterday morning, and robbed of his gold watch and [illegible] containing $840 in money. He was followed from the New-Haven Railroad Dépôt [illegible] men, who escaped with their booty. The police plead that the gas lights were not lighted.

A [illegible] named THOMAS SHARP died late [illegible] at No. 614 Water-street, from [illegible] to have been received while engaged in a fight with THOMAS CONNELL, on the night of the 6th inst., at the liquor store corner of Monroe and Rammel streets. CONNELL has been arrested. The matter is under examination by one of the Coroners.

The Philosophical Society of the Mechanics' Institute, in Fourth-avenue, were engaged on Wednesday night in listening to the report of a Committee appointed to investigate spiritual manifestations. Professor MAPES occupied the Chair. The subject is to be again discussed at the next meeting.

At the meeting of the Board of Education last night, four members of the Finance Committee resigned their places on the ground that none of their recommendations had been acted on—thus leaving nobody but Mr. HOOPER on that Committee. Several unsuccessful ballotings for their successors were taken, when the Board adjourned.

JOSEPH ESSLER has been committed in New-Utrecht to answer a charge of attempting to kill AARON SMITH on Monday last.

JOHN DIXSON, indicted for participating in the Sheepshead Bay outrage, has been required to increase his bail from $1,000 to $2,000, since the conviction of JOSEPH JACKSON.

The threatened duel between Col. JACK and H. P. CURTIS, Esq., at Brooklyn, fell through. Mr. CURTIS has commenced a civil suit for damages, instead of being at charges for pistols and coffee. Sensible.

The flags on the City Hall, Brooklyn, were raised to half-mast yesterday, out of regard to the memory of Ex-Alderman TEUNTRAM, whose funeral took place yesterday.

CHARLES F. ROOMAN, of Jersey City, who was convicted on a charge of rape at the October term of the Hudson County Court, and sent to State Prison, was pardoned last week by the New Jersey Court of Pardons, and returned home on Tuesday.

On Tuesday evening Alderman THOMPSON, of the First Ward, Jersey City, Alderman DRAYTON, of the Third Ward, and Alderman HOFFMAN, of the Fourth Ward, resigned their seats in the Jersey City Common Council, to take effect on the 1st of May, except in the case of Alderman HOFFMAN, which takes effect immediately, his term expiring on the 1st of May. Messrs. THOMPSON and DRAYTON had another year to serve from the 1st of May.

The New Isthmus Route.

The Central American States look to the Pacific transit routes with the true spirit of speculators. Each one has its eligible location for the enterprise; and, realizing the proverbial quality of the camoulile, has no hope of luxuriant thrift until trodden by all the world. Costa Rica, one of these town-lot operators, has always cherished the idea, that one of the ways must lie across its soil. To that end it has grappled with hooks of steel, but feloniously, the district of Guanacaste, part and parcel of Nicaragua, designing to connect the lake with the South Sea at Salinas Bay, a harbor of rare advantages, on the shore of that province. It was to promote this enterprise that Mr. WALKER, in settling the propositions of April, 1853, with the British Minister, as the basis of a new Central American treaty, gave to Costa Rica the south side of the San Juan River and of the Lake, as securing this desirable route. Possibly, the suggestions of the Accessory Transit managers had weight with the illustrious statesman, as they have continued to have, more or less, with his less distinguished successors from that day to this. Certainly, that Company have always coveted the Salinas route, and would have obtained it in all likelihood, had the propositions gained the dignity of a treaty. So they would have done, had the eager and instantaneous approval of Costa Rica decided the matter; but Nicaragua protested, Mr. [illegible]

[illegible] The proposition now offered to American capitalists, and which parties in this City are said to have accepted, comes from the native Government of Nicaragua united with that of Costa Rica. It establishes the title of the latter to Guanacaste, and proceeds to alter the transit from Virgin Bay and San Juan del Sud to the River Sapan and Salinas Bay. The Sapan discharges into the Lake about thirty-five miles from San Carlos, at the Head of the San Juan, and so saves one-third the lake travel. The overland route is nearly fifteen miles. The steamers upon Salinas Bay will receive the passengers, and although the voyage up the coast will be slightly lengthened, the loss will be more than compensated by the advantages of the Salinas as a secure harbor, and as facilitating the transfer of travelers. The change is unquestionably for the better. But to realize it, LOCKRIDGE must be driven from the San Juan; WALKER, if not exterminated, must be confined to the department of Rivas, and the Dallas-Clarendon treaty must be ratified. The new organization has plenty of work cut out.

The Approaching "Revulsion."

We made some remarks a day or two ago upon the Tribune's lamentations over the quantity of gold with which this country is deluged, and the number of railroads and houses which the people have thereby been seduced into constructing. We are just as anxious as our cotemporary can possibly be to keep the discussion free of all personality; but it is somewhat difficult to avoid invective in dealing with an opponent who insinuates broadly, in opening his case, that anybody who does not see the force of his arguments is most likely a person "who owes more than he can pay, or who has railroads to construct, or unproductive lands to sell."

We submit, with all due respect, that one may not belong to any of these categories, and yet dissent from the Tribune's positions very broadly.

Gold is valuable as a medium of exchange and in no other way. It is not in itself wealth. If the globe were covered with it, it would not support a man or a horse the more. But as it is the circulating medium of all civilized nations, the sudden receipt of a large quantity of it by any one country is a positive accession of wealth. The possession of one hundred millions of dollars represents the power of obtaining an enormous quantity of food and clothing, and labor,—things, which, we beg to state, are just as acceptable in the United States of America as in any other part of the world. Consequently the gold discoveries of California were for us a piece of pure and unmitigated good fortune. And yet on Friday last the Tribune asserted deliberately that in consequence of this influx of wealth, we "have to-day fewer acres of tillage, fewer factories in operation, and a smaller aggregate annual product, than if California had never produced an ounce of gold." On Tuesday last the same journal informs us "that the addition of one hundred millions of gold to our national stock, is probably as real and desirable an addition to the national wealth, as an increase of like amount of value in our wheat, cattle, or railroads."

Is the latter statement an explanation or a contradiction of the former? Can a positive addition to the national wealth be a positive national loss?

"Suppose," says our cotemporary,

"The increase of $200,000,000 in our national stock of gold, and a consequent expansion of the circulating medium carrying up the prices or nominal value of everything except specie, there is great danger that our people, or at least a large proportion of them, may mistake this increase of price or nominal value for an increase of essential or positive value, and launch into expenditure and incur debts accordingly."

There is no such danger. Every man and woman in this country is daily impressed with the wholesome truth that the value of money is entirely a relative value. No position of the population is so hopelessly stupid as the Tribune seems to imagine. Suppose an Irish hodman to receive, in consequence of an expansion of the currency, under the influence of gold discoveries,—the sum of two dollars instead of one dollar for his day's labor. Suppose this rise in his wages to take place suddenly and unexpectedly. He may certainly imagine for the first half hour, that he is twice as rich a man as he was, and forthwith prepare "to launch into expenditure." He no sooner walks to the butcher's to buy his Sunday's dinner, however, than he discovers his error. Meat he finds twice as dear—and everything else he wants to buy dearer also in the same proportion. Every one in the country, whether the commodity he has to dispose of be labor, or cheese, or iron, learns the same lesson in precisely the same way. All moralizing on this subject is a waste of material.

The tendency in which the Tribune sees most danger, is the tendency to make railroads, and borrow money in England on bonds. The fact of the matter is, that money in England is to be had at six per cent., whilst in New-York it costs ten per cent. Owing to the great fields lying open to enterprise in this country, the energy with which every commercial scheme is carried out, the rapidity with which capital is turned over and made productive, the demand for it in America is enormous, and the price paid for its use proportionately high. In England, great masses of the same commodity have accumulated for which there is no adequate outlet. The result is that there it is cheap. But the doctrine of the Tribune is, we must not borrow money where the loan of it costs little. The country is short of capital to develop its resources. The English offer it to us on our bonds at a certain rate. "Better do without it," says the Tribune; "better leave the West without roads, the markets empty, the forest uncleared; better leave the emigrant to find his way to Nebraska over a line of 'cord,' than borrow money in Lombard-street at six per cent., when you can get it in Wall-street at ten per cent." This is protection for native interests with a vengeance. What would our iron-masters and manufacturers say to a tax of four per cent. on foreign loans, for the protection of native banks? We should not be surprised to see a proposition of this sort emanating from the Tribune one of these days.

We protest against the idea that railroads in this country are to be looked on solely as a speculation, or an investment. They are, we repeat, necessities of progress, of colonization, of civilization itself. They are not to be placed in the same category as railways in any European [illegible] [illegible] rigorous by which the peasant brings his corn and his cattle to market, and the merchant brings his goods from town to town. They must be made before everything, and they can in no way be made so cheaply and profitably as with English money, borrowed on bonds bearing six per cent. interest. It is not necessary to show that they will pay a dividend either in ten or twenty years. It does not in the least affect our argument whether they do or not. The Tribune should be the last paper in the Union to demand that they should. There is no organ of opinion in this country so violent in its advocacy of abstracting money from the pockets of this generation, for the benefit of the next. Is the iron or cotton manufacture profitable? Is sugar-growing profitable? Is not the public paying a tax of 25 per cent. on nearly every article of home manufacture of which they make use, not for any present advantage to themselves, but for a contingent and remote advantage to the country in the future? The doctrine which our neighbor has put forward, that hard cash, received in exchange for bonds that, in all probability, will never be paid, is a dead loss to the borrower, has at least the charm of novelty, but we doubt greatly whether many of our financiers will be got to swallow it. In the Tribune's sixth point there occurs one of the most glaring cases of the suppressio veri we ever remember to have met with. He is treating of the general state of commerce throughout the country, and asserts roundly that the balance of exchange is against us,—that our imports exceed our exports. In proof of his assertions he cites the Custom-House returns of the port of New-York for the last three months. From these it appears that while the imports received here in that period amounted to $47,715,383—the exports were but $11,000,000. "Can this," asks the Tribune, "go on forever?"

Now what does the public think of a writer who, knowing that New-York is the great importing emporium of this country, puts forward its Custom-House returns as a fair statement of our exports—who in treating of the balance of trade suppresses the fact that our exports from Southern ports alone, in the single article of cotton, have reached between the 1st of January this year, and the 14th March, the enormous sum of $80,880,000?

Whether this is to "go on forever" we do not know, but we are quite determined that the public shall in future have a nearer view of the curious statistics on which the Tribune bases its fallacies and sermons, than ever it has had before.

The Clearance System at Home.

One of the worst and most dangerous changes which are taking place in England in consequence of the march of invention, and the accumulation of large fortunes, is the extirpation of the peasantry and the concentration of the land in the hands of the great proprietors. The improvements in agricultural machinery which are daily taking place, are enabling the large farmers to carry on operations with a daily decreasing amount of manual labor. For the same reason they are able to undersell the small holder in all the markets. The substantial yeoman, who cultivates his paternal acres with his own hands, and with the aid of three or four servants, has no more chance of success in competing with the Mechis of our day, than the handloom weaver, with the Manchester millionaire, whose thousand power-looms swallow hundreds of cotton bales in a single day.

The natural and unavoidable consequence is that the poor peasantry are sharing the fate of the poor weavers. As a class they are year by year disappearing from the agricultural districts either to seek homes in the New World, or to be absorbed in the great army of industry which now carries the great calico flag to the uttermost ends of the earth. The general result of the clearance system is very possibly the production of a greater quantity of food from the same area of soil, but we doubt whether the cheapness of corn, or the excellence of turnips can ever compensate for the absence of men. He who makes two blades of grass grow where only one grew before, is said to be a benefactor of his species; but let political economy say what it will, humanity must ever deplore the march of improvements which expel the laborer from the field, and run the plough over deserted hearths.

We have not been behindhand in this country in condemning the Sutherlands and Buccleuchs who have driven thousands of a "bold peasantry" into exile to make way for droves of cattle and sheep. We have abated not one whit of our indignation for being told that the movement will probably bring about a reduction in the price of mutton and beef. But it may abate it somewhat to be reminded that a similar change is taking place in the finest and most fertile districts of our own country. The cotton-growing portion of the valley of the Mississippi, the very garden of the Union, is year by year being wrested from the hands of the small farmer, and delivered over to the great capitalists and their "cattle." The white yeoman, the class which has contributed more of the blood and devotion, and good sense and enterprise which have made this country what it is, than any other, are either forced into the sandy pine-hills, or are driven west to clear and prepare the soil, for the army of negroes and negro-drivers which forever presses on their heels, to make their industry unprofitable, and their life intolerable.

All the great cotton lands were first opened up by industrious settlers, with small means and much energy. No sooner is their clearing made, and their homestead growing into comfort, than the great planter comes up from the East, with his black horde, settles down on the district, and absorbs and overruns everything. This is precisely the process which is going on, day by day, over the greater portion of Louisiana and Mississippi. The small farmers—that is to say, the mass of the white population—are fast disappearing. The rich bottom lands of that glorious valley are being concentrated in the hands of large planters, with from 100 to 1,000 negroes. The average number of negroes, and average quantity of land, belonging to single proprietors, is yearly increasing. The wealthier the proprietor himself, the less does he reside on his property, and the more disposed is he to commit it to the care of overseers. In some counties in Mississippi the negroes are twenty times more numerous than the citizens. Whole districts are peopled solely by black "merchandise," and some half dozen white dro[illegible] [illegible] year. The poor peasantry, who from time immemorial have proved of the patrimony which our children of the brave of olden time won for them, are not only being driven off the fairest portion of the soil like the Scotch Highlanders and the Irish peasantry—but literature and religion are fast disappearing in that portion of this Continent on which Providence seems to have intended them to flourish most.

The muses fly with no less horror from before the crack of the driver's cowhide than before the roar of the cannon, or the shrieks of a mob. "Wit, eloquence and poesy" are not likely to fix their seats in the "nigger quarters."

Books are becoming yearly scarcer, barbarism of manners and ideas yearly more extended and more rampant. None of the thousand and one civilizing agents supplied by literature can have any influence where the only readers are a handful of busy men, whose very employment is an evidence of ignorance and brutality. The little newspapers of the county towns are so conducted as to aggravate rather than diminish the evil. The elementary portions of free government are being lost. The stray visits of the itinerant preachers, far from keeping alive anything worthy of the name of religion, simply furnish occasion for a species of nervous debauch, which, like all other excesses, leaves behind only reaction and prostration. Whether thick night will finally settle down on the whole region, only to be dissipated at some remote period by a terrible revolution, or whether Providence has in reserve some more potent means than we yet know of, to save for liberty, civilization and the Anglo-American race, a territory worthy of their highest efforts and their noblest triumphs, it would be useless for us to speculate.

Whatever doubts we may entertain about the future, however, we have none whatever about the suicidal policy pursued by those Northern manufacturers who cling to the South under mistaken notions of self-interest, and believe that the abolition of Slavery would deprive them of customers. The manufacturer or merchant who supports upon commercial principles a system of agriculture which turns the population into cattle, and limits their wants to "brogans" of untanned leather, and two suits of coarse convict clothing in the year, is a man upon whom all argument would be thrown away. That such men abound in our Northern cities we know. They have our sympathy and our prayers.

HIGHLY DELIGHTED.—Croakers who are always predicting ruin are never in a happier frame of mind than when a great calamity has fallen upon the public. It is the Herald's speciality to predict a general collapse of public credit; and universal ruin, the corruption of the public morals, the hypocrisy of the clergy, the hollow-heartedness of society, and universal bankruptcy, are the dismal elements which form the chief staple of the Herald's inculcation. It is always "i' the (Parker) vein" of dire forebodings. Of course what it predicts it strives to make good; and, if the character of New-York is not destroyed, its credit gone, its banks bankrupt, and its merchants ruined, it is not the fault of the Herald. But, happily for the community, the power of the Herald is not quite equal to its dismal malignancy. Its fleas will not become lobsters, swear as it may. However, it is occasionally gratified by a small revulsion in commercial affairs, and afforded an opportunity to exult over the misfortunes of a luckless merchant, who from some accident or other is compelled to stop payment. During the past three or four days the amiable Ogre has been perfectly delighted at a fall of three or four per cent. in the stock of the Erie Railroad; and the fact that a heavy loss had been suffered by that great work in consequence of the hard weather of the last Winter, has thrown the Herald into a perfect ecstacy of delight. If anything could happen to obstruct the operation of that road, or of any of the other costly works on which the prosperity of New-York depends, the Herald's jollity would be immense and inexpressible. The breaking out of an epidemic in the City, the stoppage of some of our largest banks, the defalcations of a few prominent cashiers, or anything else that would put a stop to the provoking prosperity of the people, would be nuts to the Herald. But, its delight must be short-lived, the price of real estate will go up; the people will contrive to have confidence in the general integrity of the country, and the teeming elements of wealth and happiness are too numerous for any of the dismal iterations of the Herald to have any adverse effect. It is only a dog barking at the moon's splendor.

SUPPOSE TO PRESIDENT PIERCE.—The Washington correspondent of the Boston Traveller records an incident connected with the closing act of President PIERCE's Administration, which is worth repeating. The extra compensation bill, which was to add 20 per cent. to the pay of the employés of Congress, had been engineered through both Houses, and was taken by an anxious clerk to the President for his signature. After calling his attention to the subject twice without effect, the clerk again said:

"'Why don't you sign this bill, General; I have examined it and find it all right,' referring, of course, to its being engrossed correctly. To this question, Mr. PIERCE responded in a manner which did him great credit, in these words, which, as they constitute his last veto, and as they express his meaning so fully and sensibly, are worthy the honor of a separate paragraph. Here it is:

'Simply because I do not choose to sign it.'"

The President was quite right—not only in refusing to sign a bill which he did not approve, but in declining to enter into any argument on the subject with a party interested in it. If he had evinced equal independence throughout his Administration, and had exercised the power which belongs to his office with equal firmness and self-reliance, he would have made a better end. As it is, he leaves both warning and example for his successor.

A NEW SYSTEM OF DEPLETING THE PEOPLE.—Let us wonder as we may at the lack of invention shown by our City legislators in devising measures for the public good, we cannot but acknowledge the fertility of invention shown by them in originating schemes for bleeding the people. The last brilliancy of that kind which has scintillated in our Common Council is the idea of creating a "market stock," to be employed in building new markets. The idea is a bold one and the prospects of good jobs which it opens up to the imaginations of certain parties must make their mouths water with expectations of a good time coming. We trust that the new markets will [illegible]

LICENTIOUSNESS OF THE PRESS.—The Irish News professes to be under a "cloud of mind" about the licentiousness of the American Press. It says that, "the reckless abuse of the Press in the Dred Scott case has challenged alike our apprehensions and disgust." This may be news for the Irish, but, as Mr. Toots says, it's of no consequence to anybody else.

THE CRIMEAN WAR.—A recent document published by Parliament shows that the total number of British troops landed in the Crimea during the war was 89,901, of whom 18,297 were killed in battle or died from disease. Besides these, 11,574 are returned as having been invalided—making the total loss 30,901 during a period of 18 months. The total cavalry was 6,939, of which the loss in dead and invalided was 1,807—the total artillery was 9,944, and the loss 2,264. The total number of officers killed in all was 167, and 579 were wounded.

Woodman, Spare That Tree—The Vane of the Brick Church Safely Landed.

One of the most select crowds that ever assembled at any spot in our City, since the War of the Revolution, or the disturbance of 1812, or some other equally momentous occasion, assembled yesterday afternoon, in the southeastern corner of the Park, and at the corner of Park-row and Beekman-st., to witness the descent of the huge vane that for years has told the way of the wind, and "the fickest index to the skies" from the summit of the Brick Church steeple. We say, one of the most select crowds, for one-half of the spectators were the descendants of the old Knickerbockers. The time of the Brick Church, by many of them, is deserving the consideration bestowed on the removal of a neighbor's landmark—as long as they can remember, no material change in it has been made, so many men and women have been born, married, buried, and their children's children have grown up, flourished, faded, and died, while the ancient weathercock, the sharpest of all weathercocks, has stood there, in Summer heat and Winter cold, [illegible] with that old steeple, with the exception of a few years, in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. The recollection of so revered, so venerable a landmark, and now to be going the way of all humanity, through fear that even the Pyramids and the Sphinx must go. If the crowd did not shed tears yesterday, it was because their interest in the sad business of the occasion outstripped their sorrow for the cause that made it desirable.

It descended in this wise. On the apex of the steeple, adventurous Hibernian laborers erected a derrick, to which they attached a tackle and fall, whereupon first they lifted the vane (some thirty feet full) out of its socket, and then lumbered it into the street—the space (200 feet) that separated it from the sidewalk. By slow degrees it descended, and in about two hours after it first started on the perilous journey, it comfortably rested within the iron railing of the church, by the side of the main entrance. The rush of the crowd towards it, immediately it touched earth, was tremendous. The ball, four feet in diameter, was encircled by the curious arms of enthusiastic boys, and sedate, middle-aged men. The following inscription, to the wonder of all, was quite legible on it: "JOSEPH CRAIG, printer, No. 284 Pearl-street, July 16, 1840." There were also some other inscriptions, too much obliterated to be deciphered. Who JOSEPH CRAIG—how came his name there—what sent him skimming up the spear of the vane? Could he confer distinction on his name by no conceivable less arduous? Everybody asked everybody who was JOSEPH CRAIG, and what his name did up there, bleaching for seventeen years in the wind and rain, and defying the lightning and the equinoctial storms.

Alas! for the old Brick Church. No more will the bell toll in its steeple, for it was safely landed yesterday at the base of the tower, just within the centre entrance. Rusty old bell to look at, but of marvelous good metal. The best men don't have the best coats always, and the old bell is considerably shabby in its external gloss; but rub its rust off, and send it up town to the new church now a building for Dr. SPRAGUE's congregation, and in days to come man who are now children shall say to their children, "The same bell that tolls the hour of worship used to toll in the old Brick Church which stood, in our young days, near where the DAILY TIMES Office now stands." And the children yet to be born for many a year yet will never pass the TIMES Office without thinking of that same old Brick Church, and the bell that sounded for their fathers and grandfathers in the tower, and which still summons them to worship every Sabbath morn and even.

WILDER PATENT SALAMANDER SAFE. [illegible] GENERALLY FIREPROOF SAFE. [illegible] Wednesday, March 18, 1857. [illegible] CHAPLIN & JONES. [illegible]

THE GREAT FIRE. [illegible] NEW-YORK, [illegible] GENTLEMEN: On the morning of the 16th of last December, my store, with others, was destroyed by fire, and I ordered one of your STEARNS & MARVIN'S SAFES from the rubbish, I found my books, cash and valuable papers, to the amount of about seven thousand dollars, in perfect order. Yours truly, JOHN CANAVAN. [illegible] Depot of STEARNS & MARVIN'S FIRE-PROOF SAFES, No. 46 Murray-st., New-York.

Some Hopes yet of being cured of Consumption, by the use of RUSHTON'S COD-LIVER OIL. It loosens the cough, diminishes the night-sweats, and imparts strength to the body. Be particular to use that with FREDERICK V. RUSHTON'S name in full on each label. Sold at $1 a bottle, at No. 10 Astor House, corner of Barclay-st., and No. 419 Broadway, corner of Canal-st.

Correspondence. NEW-YORK, March 16, 1857. Captain H. A. DE RIVIERS—Dear Sir: Having learned from many public and private sources that you were with the French Army in the Crimea during the late war, and engaged in the Battles of the Alma, Balaklava, Inkerman, Tchernaya, and as a leader in the storm hope in the assault on the Malakoff, and capture of Sebastopol, we should be highly gratified to hear your delivery a lecture on the subject in this City, at such time, and place as would be convenient to you. The great interest the American people have felt in the Russian War, and the little opportunity we have had of learning something distinctively of this, one of the greatest military achievements of modern times, from one who was an active participant in the scenes, we doubt not but all classes of our citizens will gladly seize the opportunity of hearing a personal statement from yourself.

ISAAC O. BARKER, LUTHER BRADDISH, HENRY GRINNELL, JAMES HARPER, ELIJAH PURDY, J. HOYT, W. H. APPLETON, J. R. WEBB, HIRAM BARNEY, P. M. WETMORE, W. BUTLER DUNCAN, A. RUSSELL, JOHN W. FRANCIS.

NEW-YORK, March 16, 1857. GENTLEMEN: I feel myself highly honored by your communication of the 16th inst., and, in accepting the invitation, will name Tuesday evening next, March 24, at Hope Chapel, as the time and place for the lecture. I am, gentlemen, with much respect, your obedient servant, H. A. DE RIVIERS.

In accordance with the above arrangements, Captain DE RIVIERS will deliver a lecture on The Sanitary Condition of the Crimea, at Hope Chapel, Broadway, on TUESDAY EVENING, March 24, at 8 o'clock. TICKETS OF ADMISSION, FIFTY CENTS. To be had at all the principal bookstores and hotels on Broadway.

To the Afflicted.—HYATT'S LIFE BALSAM.—This potent yet purely vegetable purifier is now acknowledged the only reliable curative for all diseases flowing from great impurity of the blood. Rheumatism in its most painful forms and of twenty-five years' standing, is entirely eradicated from the system. Scrofula and king's evil readily yield to its powerful yet mild influence, and so thoroughly and so speedily in some cases that there is seldom scarcely a scar left of the most frightful ulcers to mar the appearance of the patient. In old ulcers, fever sores, mercurial diseases, it cures in an incredibly short period, removing every particle of impurity from the blood. In eruptive diseases, such as erysipelas, salt rheum, pimples, blotches on the face, or the worst cases of humours of the blood, it cannot fail, if taken according to the directions. In diseases of the liver, kidneys, spleen, debility, incipient consumption, &c., the LIFE BALSAM can be relied on as the most safe and sure remedy ever known. The certificates put up with each bottle are not from persons 1,000 miles distant, or having no existence at all, as is the case with most of the advertised nostrums, but from well-known citizens of New-York; and the cures are such as to challenge their equal in the world. The dose is from a teaspoonful to two tablespoonfuls. General directions accompany each bottle. 75 cents per bottle—six for $4. Principal depôt, No. 246 Grand-st. Agent for Brooklyn, Mrs. HAYES, No. 175 Fulton-st.; and Druggists generally.

WIGS!—HAIR-DYE!—WIGS!!! Batchelor's Wigs and Toupees have improvements peculiar to their house. They are unbleached all over the world for their great beauty, ease and durability—fitting to a charm. The largest and best stock in the world. Twelve private rooms for applying his famous DYE. Sold at BATCHELOR'S, No. 233 Broadway.

For Sale or to a Bargain.—The three-story brick house and lot No. 124 Forsyth-st., between Broome and Delancey sts.—lot 25x100 feet. The house is in first-rate orders, and has all the necessary conveniences for a private residence or genteel boarding house. If not disposed of within a few days it will be sold at auction. For particulars, apply to HARRIOT & MILLER, Broadway, corner of Broome-st., or to G. A. ALBRO, No. 156 Bowery.

Wakefield.—The Members of Industrial Home Association No. 3, and others who wish to obtain cheap lots, are hereby notified that the Purchasing Trustee will be at No. 163 Bowery on Thursday evening, March 19, from 7 to 9 o'clock, and each Thursday evening thereafter, until May 19, to dispose of the surplus property of the Association. A plan of the lots with the price can be obtained on application. COEN'S A. COOPER, Purchasing Trustee.

A Remarkable Discovery.—Mr. CHICHESTER has prepared from some of our Garden Vegetables a certain cure for Dyspepsia. It does not act as a purgative. One drop at a time of his DYSPEPSIA SPECIFIC cures Heartburn, Sick-Headache, and removes Constipation. Depôt No. 191 Wall-st., N.Y.

Peremptory Sale at Auction at No. 345 Broadway. The valuable stock of Fancy Goods contained in the emporium of the late GEORGE W. TUTTLE will be sold at auction THIS DAY, and every day until closed out, by order of the Administrator. C. & F. H. SCHENCK, Auctioneers.

Theodore Sedgwick, Esq., of New-York, will lecture at the Westminster Chapel, corner of First-place and Clinton-st., Brooklyn, THIS (Thursday) EVENING, at 7½ o'clock. Subject—The Age of Augustus. Tickets 25 cents.

The Nineteenth Anniversary of the Society of Inquiry of Union Theological Seminary will be held THIS EVENING, at 7½ o'clock, in the Seminary Chapel, No. 9 University-place.

NEW-YORK, Jan. 31, 1857.

INDIANA CENTRAL RAILWAY COMPANY.—$250,000 TEN PER CENT. MORTGAGE BONDS FOR SALE.—We offer for sale $250,000 of the Second Mortgage Bonds of the Indiana Central Railway Company. Coupon interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum. Coupons payable 1st July and 1st Jan. in New-York; principal redeemable at the same place in 1862.

This road is completed and in successful operation, is 79½ miles long, commencing at the City of Indianapolis, the Capital of the State of Indiana, and terminating at the Ohio State line, near Richmond, Indiana, connecting with the Dayton and Western Railway.

This road is one of great importance; it is in excellent order, and doing a large and profitable business. The Company also operates the Dayton and Western road, 16½ miles—the whole line 196 miles long. The earnings of the two lines for 1854, were $261,400; for 1855, $305,100, and for 1856, $354,000; each year showing a large increase over the preceding one, and the last year, $112,000 over that of 1854; and the month of January, 1857, shows an increase of $9,302 over the same month in 1856.

The working expenses of the line for the past year have been less than 50 per cent of the gross earnings; including all expenses, including renewals of depots, bridges, wood-houses, &c., &c., and including considerable expenses properly in construction, such as covering and weather-boarding bridges, building additional depots, water stations, filling up depot grounds, ballasting, &c., are less than 45 per cent. of the gross earnings. These facts will appear by the Company's report for 1856, which may be had at our office.

The Company operates the entire line between Indianapolis and Dayton, each Company furnishing an equal proportion of rolling stock, in proportion to length of line, and paying the working expenses out of the gross earnings. Of the net earnings this Company is entitled to 71 per cent., and pay the Dayton and Western Company 29 per cent.

This line connects at Richmond directly with Cincinnati, and at Dayton with Columbus, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and New-York, and also with the Lakes; and on the completion of the Pittsburg and Steubenville road, it will be the shortest line between New-York, Indianapolis, and St. Louis.

An inspection of a map will show that this is a part of the great railway line from New-York and Philadelphia by Pittsburg, Columbus and Dayton, Ohio, and Indianapolis and Terre Haute, Indiana, to St. Louis.

The railway traverses the oldest settled, best cultivated, most populous and wealthy portion of Indiana.

No other portion of the Mississippi Valley is equal to the country on and near the line of this road and its immediate connections, in improvements, wealth and productiveness, and the passenger earnings of the road are very large, ($203,152, out of a total amount of $354,000 for 1856,) and increasing greatly.

The entire cost of the road is about $8,100,000.

The first mortgage is for $600,000, at 7 per cent., maturing in ten years from this time, and the two mortgages will constitute the entire indebtedness of the Company.

The second mortgage is for $700,000; not more than $600,000 will be issued.

The object of making this debt is to pay off a small amount of floating debt of the Company, and certain Income Bonds maturing within the present and the next year.

We think these Bonds most amply secured. The Company has heretofore paid an amount of interest equal to the amount of the interest on these Bonds, through the most stringent times, without a single failure; and we think the earnings must continue to increase for many years in about the ratio of previous years, which will not only pay all expenses and interest, but handsome dividends to Stockholders.

The Company has paid six per cent. in dividends out of the net earnings of the past year, leaving a surplus of nearly 4 per cent. on the stock.

The Company will have left assets in real estate, taken for stock and debts due for real estate sold, of about $140,000, which will be realized, and which will constitute a fund to reduce their indebtedness.

These Bonds will be exchanged for any of the 10 per cent. Bonds of the Company, falling due within the next two years, at par, on application to us at any time before they are disposed of.

We think these Securities a safe and most desirable investment, and commend them as such to our friends.

For any other information, or further information, on the subject of these securities, apply to us at our office.

LOAN FOR $500,000.—FOR THE DEFICIENCY in the Sinking Fund, under Section three, Article seven, of the Constitution. The Commissioners of the Canal Fund, by virtue of an act entitled "An act to provide means to support the Government," passed April 12, 1856, and in accordance with Section three of Article seven of the Constitution, hereby give notice that sealed proposals will be received at the Canal Department until the 24th day of March next, at 12 o'clock noon of that day, for a loan of FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS, for which transferable certificates of stock will be issued in the name of the people of the State of New-York, on the credit of the Sinking Fund, under Section three, Article seven, of the Constitution, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable quarterly on the first days of January, April, July and October in each year, and the principal reimbursable on the first day of January, 1871. It is to be understood that the Commissioners are to be at liberty to take a less sum, if the offers are not such as in their opinion are advantageous to the interests of the State. The proposals may be for the whole or any part of said loan not less than $5,000. All proposals to be sealed up and indorsed "Loan for the Sinking Fund," and inclosed in an envelope directed to the Auditor of the Canal Department, Albany.

The money will be required to be paid, five per cent. on the acceptance of the proposal, and the balance on the 20th day of March instant, at the New-York State Bank in the city of Albany, or at the Manhattan Company, in the City of New-York, but the money will be received and the scrip issued at any time before if desired, after the award of the loan is made.

Payments to be made by depositing the same to the credit of the Treasurer of the State on account of the Canal Fund," in the Manhattan Company, New-York, or in the New-York State Bank, in the city of Albany. Interest on the Loan will commence on the 20th day of March instant, and the holders of the stock residing in the First and Second Judicial Districts, and those residing out of the State will receive the interest on the Stock held by them, quarterly, at the Manhattan Company, in the City of New-York; and all other Stockholders at the New-York State Bank, in the city of Albany. Dated Canal Department, Albany, March 2, 1857.

OFFICE OF THE WATERTOWN & MADISON R. R. CO., No. 39½ Exchange-place.

$300,000 IN BONDS OF THE CITIES OF MADISON AND WATERTOWN, WIS., FOR SALE.—This road completes a direct and nearest air line between Milwaukee and Madison, the capital of Wisconsin.

It is thirty-four miles in length, connecting at Watertown with the "Watertown Division" of the La Crosse and Milwaukee Railroad Company, with which it has a contract for a very favorable running connection for thirty years. By this Road the distance between Milwaukee and Madison is 76 miles, by the Milwaukee and Mississippi Railroad. It passes through a good agricultural and highly improved country. Madison and Watertown are two of the most beautiful and thriving cities in the State, being in point of population, business, and wealth, second only to Milwaukee. The city of Madison has issued to this Company, as a loan, her 20-year 7 per cent. coupon Bonds, to the amount of $100,000, with semi-annual interest.

The city of Watertown has issued to the Company, in payment for her subscription to the capital stock 20-year 8 per cent. coupon Bonds, to the amount of $200,000, with semi-annual interest.

The township of Waterloo has issued $35,000, in payment of subscription, in 20-year 8 per cent. coupon Bonds, with interest annually—interest and principal of all the bonds payable in the City of New-York.

The Company offers these Bonds for sale at their office, (No. 39½ Exchange-place,) together with a large amount of 8 per cent. Farm Mortgage Coupon Bonds, guaranteed by the Company.

Further information in regard to the Road may be had at the office of the Company.

CAUTION.—TO CAPITALISTS, CONVEYANCERS AND THE PUBLIC.—The public are cautioned against certain mortgages on property in the city of Philadelphia, described as a certain tract or parcel of marsh or crippled land, situate on the west side of the Schuylkill River, north of Market-st. Bridge, formerly in the township of Blockley, and now in the XXIVth Ward of the city of Philadelphia. The undersigned, who executed those mortgages, never had any valid title to the premises, and received no consideration for the mortgages in question. He has been imposed upon, and the whole affair is an imposture, well understood in Philadelphia. New-York capitalists are warned against them.

[illegible]

[illegible] Mr. Joachimsen said that the assurance referred to was given by the District Attorney not with a view to avoid meeting any writ of habeas corpus, or any other writ the counsel for the defence might see fit to issue, but because the acceptance of the recognizances of the parties was considered binding on the Government till a true bill was returned against them by the Grand Jury.

Ex-Judge Dean said this matter was fully understood. Defendants, as the case stood, intended to demand a trial in the event of an indictment being found before a full bench of the United States Court. He hoped the result would decide whether it was a crime to commit a legal act.

Some remarks ensued as to the disposition of JAMES MITCHEL, arrested at the same time with Messrs. FARRAN and BOZEAN. It was stated that he had been lying in Eldridge-street jail ever since the commencement of the examination. It was urged that he ought to be discharged on his own recognizances as well as the other prisoners.

The Commissioner promises to give his decision in MITCHEL's case this morning.

Ex-Consul FARRAN and Captain BOZEAN showed no disappointment at the adverse decision of the Commissioner. They retired from the Court room in company with their counsel, chatting in a lively way, filled to any foreboding of an evil future.

Be Careful of Foreign Liquors.

Citizens who have no regard for the Maine law, in whose eyes the projected new License law has no terrors, who intend to drink whenever they have an inclination, and who thirst after imported liquors, may take warning from a trial in the Court of General Sessions on Monday.

Did our best French brandy ever see France? Has our BARCLAY and PERKINS any connection with the London brewery, whose draymen thrashed the Austrian tyrant, HAYNAU? Do we get London or Dublin porter, or Edinburg or Glasgow ale, pure? Those who are foolish enough to buy such nominally imported liquors may learn a lesson from this same trial in the Court of Sessions.

The firm of YOUNGER & Co., of Edinburg, brew the celebrated Abbey Brewery ale, in the Scotch capital. It is drank largely in the dominions of Queen VICTORIA. It is said to be largely imported into the United States. It is a favorite ale wherever it can be obtained pure. But its celebrity offers a large scope to scoundrels for its fabrication, and for a long time past sundry fellows have gained a livelihood by selling ordinary American ale, with labels, simulated from those of the Edinburg firm. In plain fact, Americans who call for foreign drinks ought to be cheated, whether they trust the labels of Sillery Mousseux, Duc de Montebello, Lafitte, Chateau Margaux, Hochheimer, or Haut Brisone, to represent the genuine wines in question, at two and a half, three dollars, and four dollars a bottle, or the viler London and Dublin porter and Scotch ale, at twenty-five cents, which, without the indorsement of the label, are properly charged on draught at six cents. It was shown, on Monday, in the Court of Sessions, that the labels of most of these firms have for a long time been counterfeited in this and other cities of the Union. A Swiss named JACQUES SANDMEYER, doing business in Duane-street, was charged with printing and selling the labels of YOUNGER and MUIR, and convicted on the best evidence. The proofs was pitiful, the price charged being only $15 per thousand sheets, each sheet containing twelve labels. The proof against him was complete. The Jury found him guilty, but Judge RUSSELL, who sends youths for life to the State Prison for stealing six and a quarter cents, sentenced Mr. SANDMEYER, to only sixty days in the City Prison. But then Mr. SANDMEYER is respectable.

Board of Governors.

The number of inmates at the various Institutions, March 7, was 6,663, of whom only 21 are at the small-pox hospital, a decrease from the previous quotation. There have been admitted, since that date, 1,005; 55 have died, 926 have been discharged, and 106 sent to State Prison, leaving 5,623 under the charge of the Institutions.

This being requisition day, the usual demands were submitted and granted.

Several communications were received, among which was one from the Warden of our Penitentiary, indorsing the excellence of a similar establishment he had visited at Albany. It is self-supporting. Number of inmate, 250, kept in constant employ, chiefly making cane seats. The discipline is correct and rigid. He thinks we cannot successfully compete with them at present, while we work our own stone-quarries. Ordered to be printed and referred to Committee to report.

Governor TOWNSEND referred to the enormous expenditures practised on the Board, and desired the Clerk to read the following letter:

NEW-YORK CITY LUNATIC ASYLUM, March 17, 1857.

James Townsend, Esq., Governor of Almshouse, &c.—SIR: Knowing the interest exhibited by you in protecting our citizens from unjust taxation and your desire to provide liberally for the truly unfortunate, I send you a copy of a paper found in the possession of TYLER WEDGE, a lunatic recently admitted into this institution:

"AMHERST, Mass., Dec. 17, 1856.

We, the undersigned, agree to pay TYLER WEDGE the sums set opposite our names, that he may be men ree in his mind to go to Pennsylvania and see his folks."

To this document five signatures are appended.

The writer (Dr. RAMNER, physician to the Asylum,) then proceeds to give the history of this man, religiously insane. TYLER graduated at Amherst. The Doctor proceeds thus: "The City of New-York is ever noted for its benevolence. But you are now supporting hundreds of lunatic paupers who have no legitimate claim on the City, but who really belong to the State. Foreigners becoming insane, are returned from different counties to the Commissioners of Emigration, and are soon left to your benevolent care. Our City seems to be the terminus of their pilgrimage."

The Doctor gives several other illustrative cases. He advises a proper application to the Legislature, and concludes thus: "Should your application be granted, the amount can be expended in extending the accommodations for the insane; but, if otherwise, what remedy remains but to distribute some two hundred lunatics as equally possible throughout the counties of the State."

On motion of Governor TOWNSEND, the matter was laid over.

Governor TOWNSEND submitted the following resolution, which was adopted unanimously:

Whereas, Owing to a want of suitable provision for the care of infants who are abandoned to the Almshouse Department, and the serious responsibility and care arising from the present imperfect system in placing children at nurse in all parts of the City; therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee on Out Door Poor report to the Board upon the expediency of organizing a HOME FOR FOUNDLINGS, for the care of infants thrown upon or abandoned to the Department, and that the Committee be instructed to ascertain how similar institutions in Europe are managed, with such other information as may be useful to its proper organization, and also to report upon the expediency of the appointment of an Advisory Directory of benevolent ladies, who would act as a consulting board in the care and management of such an institution.

The special order was then called for in relation to the Randall's Island School. As the hour was late, it was laid over until this day fortnight. Adjourned.

Board of Councilmen.

The Board of Councilmen met on Wednesday—the President, J. M. PHILLIPS, Esq., in the Chair.

Among petitions presented was one for the removal of Potter's Field Burial Ground, complaint being made of the annoyance of the frequent disinterment of the bodies of the dead.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED.

That the Street Commissioner be instructed to notify such contractors as have contracts, the time for completing which has expired, to show cause why such contracts should not be finished by the Street Commissioner, and the same charged to said contractor or his surety. And that the Street Commissioner report to this Board what steps, if any, are necessary in cases where contractors have failed to commence their contracts when the time has expired, and the work not commenced.

A resolution was adopted to the effect that the Mercantile Library Association be furnished with a copy of the concurrent proceedings of the Common Council when published; also, a copy of the documents when the same are bound, and ready for distribution.

A resolution was adopted earnestly protesting against the passage of an act now in progress through the Legislature, for the erection of a City Hall and Court-house in New-York, and that such resolution be transmitted to the members of Assembly and Senators from this City.

A CONSISTENT MOVEMENT.

Third Readings.—The bill for increasing the salaries of members of the Board of Councilmen to eight dollars each meeting, was passed by a vote of 21 to 16. This is just double the previous amount of pay. Much noise and confusion prevailed. Councilman MCCABELE changed his vote, while the President was calling the numbers, otherwise there would have been no constitutional vote.

The Board then adjourned to the first Monday in April at 6 o'clock, instead of 5, as formerly.

Assistant Engineer.

DANIEL DONAVAN, late Foreman of No. 18 Engine, has been elected Assistant Engineer of the Fire Department by a plurality of 26 votes.

[illegible]

There was a meeting of the Young Men's Republican Committee at Academy Hall, last evening. A series of resolutions in relation to the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Dred Scott, were referred to a Committee; and another Committee was instructed to inquire into the expediency of getting up a series of public meetings. Some action was also taken for a closer coöperation with the Old Men's Committee, and in reference to the non-attendance of members.

☞ Among the lunatics at the Blackwell's Island Asylum is a Mr. TYLER WEDGE, a graduate of Amherst College. His case has been presented to the Governors as an instance of one whom the City supports, but who is really chargeable to the State.

Coroner's Inquests.

CONGESTION OF THE BRAIN FROM A FALL.

An inquest was held yesterday by Coroner PERRY, at the house of Archy Connegan, No. 4 Jersey-street, upon the body of Anne Cunningham, a child of 1 year 7 months, who came to a death from concussion of the brain, in consequence of a fall from a chair. Verdict in accordance with the facts.

DEATH FROM LAUDANUM.

WILLIAM L. DEVIN, a native of Green County, New-York, and recently a clerk in a leather-store, in Frankfort-street, this City, was found dead in his bed at Tammany Hall, where for a few days he had been lodging. A vial, partly filled with laudanum, was found by his bedside, and the stomach, which was analyzed by Dr. KISSAM, was found to contain laudanum or arsenic in sufficient quantity to cause death. Deceased was a man of intemperate habits. He was 28 years of age. He frequently stopped at Tammany Hall, and generally registered a name other than his own upon the hotel book. This he did on his last visit. One of the female servants testified before Coroner CORNEY, by whom the inquest was held, that the deceased complained of being ill on Monday afternoon; that she assisted him to his bedroom, where she saw on a table by the bedside a bottle of laudanum or opium, which deceased said he was accustomed to take to put himself to sleep.

The Jury rendered a verdict of "Accidental death by the indirectest use of laudanum."

ACCIDENTALLY DROWNED.

JOHN READY, a boy 10 years of age, was drowned on Tuesday, at the foot of Amos-street. He was, with other boys, engaged in flying a kite on the dock, when, by some means or other, he stumbled and fell into the river. Coroner CORNEY held an inquest upon the body. Verdict, "Accidental drowning." Deceased resided with his parents, at No. 729 Greenwich-street.

BELIEVE YOUR OWN EYES.

No rule can be safe. Boasters seldom speak the truth. That which is superior always speaks for itself. It does not demand the assistance of falsehood, and mendacity always injures, not exalts it. Thus it is that Morgan's London Cordial Gin needs none of the labored puffs and manufactured certificates the use of which is so characteristic of its base imitations. The article is so well known to families, its good qualities as a generous tonic, a mild and inoffensive stimulant, a genial and pleasant beverage, that no prudent housekeeper will be without it. This is a prouder and more significant evidence of its surpassing excellence than all the magnilloquent trumpetings of its small-beer calumniators. Sold at 50 cents and $1, in pint and quart bottles, by O. H. KING, No. 192 Broadway; by MRS. HAYES, Brooklyn, and all grocers and druggists. Imported and sold to the trade by R. E. MESSENGER & Co., No. 56 Fulton-street, New-York.

☞ Have you an affection of the heart? Are your energies suddenly prostrated? Does costiveness trouble you? Have you a cold, heavy feeling on one side of your head? Have you pain in your side, and at the pit of your stomach, through to your back? Do you feel unequal to your daily avocations? Are you depressed by anxious fears, feeling as if some great calamity were going to overwhelm you? Is your appetite bad? Are your daily dejections intermixed with food, as taken into the stomach; are they of a clay-like color? If all, or any of these symptoms affect you, have recourse to Brandreth's Pills; they will not deceive you, but restore you to perfect health and the full enjoyment to all your faculties. Sold at No. 48 Brandreth Building, Nos. 415 and 417 Broadway.

☞ A retired Physician, whose sands of life have nearly run out, discovered, while living in the East Indies, a certain cure for consumption, asthma, bronchitis, coughs, colds and general debility. The remedy was discovered by him when his only child—a daughter—was given up to die. Wishing to do as much good as possible, he will send to such of his afflicted fellow-beings as request it this recipe, with full and explicit directions for making it up and successfully using it. He requires each applicant to inclose him one shilling—three cents to be returned as postage on the recipe, and the remainder to be applied to the expense of this advertisement. Address Dr. H. CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.

It is impossible to overrate the amount of injury to the public health that must result from the use of adulterated liquors, owing as they do the seeds of disease in secret, and reaping their harvest in the bills of mortality. Since I introduced, exclusively, a perfectly pure, salutary, and eminently curative dietetic beverage, in my Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps, these poisonous drug compounds have sought to perpetuate their reign by nefarious imitations, in name and style of external package. "London Cordial Gin, London Club-House Gin, Medicated Schnapps, Medicated Schiedam Gin," are among the many fraudulent and unscrupulous disguises which these artificial mixtures have assumed. Well knowing the universal preference given to my Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps, by the medical authorities and practitioners of the whole country, and the thousands of commendatory testimonials that I have received and am continually receiving from them, the base imitators are driven to the necessity of such brazen frauds as the only alternative to their being driven out of the market. But I trust that the intelligent, the temperate, and the morally respectable classes of the whole community will be on their guard against them, and will seriously unite with me, as they heretofore have done, in exposing and putting down such vile and heartless attempts, as well for the sake of the public health as for the cause of honesty and fair dealing. My Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps, introduced direct from Holland in 1848, are proved by chemical analysis to be the purest ever made in the world, and all others, by whatever name they may be called, are spurious and inferior, and invariably poisonous imitations.

KINGS COUNTY COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER.—WEDNESDAY, March 18.

Before Judge Strong, and Justices Emmons and Schoonmaker.

This Court reassembled this morning, when District-Attorney Schumaker moved that the bail of John Dixson, indicted for rape, be increased, and sureties renewed. The bail was, accordingly, fixed at $2,000, and he was again liberated.

THE NEW-UTRECHT MURDER.

The trial of Seymour for the murder of Cornelius Cannon, in New-Utrecht, is set down for the 19th inst., but it is expected that he will not be tried, as the Commission will, undoubtedly, report that he is of unsound mind.

THE RAFE CASES.

The District-Attorney is very desirous of bringing the other parties engaged in the Sheepshead Bay outrage to trial the present term—as the detention of the complaining witnesses until the next term will prove a serious hardship. There are two persons indicted for rape, (attrind,) and three more who are indicted for spiriting the complaining witnesses away. The public mind will not be quieted until all of the parties connected with this outrage are punished according to their deserts.

BROOKLYN CITY COURT.—MARCH 18.

Before Judge Culver.

THE RIVER PIRATES.

John Menoch and John Welsh vs. John S. Folk and George Hall.—This case, which was commenced *on the 17th, was concluded to-day, and a verdict ren*dered in favor of the defendants. The suit was brought to recover the value of seventy bushels of grain and damages for seizure.

Plaintiffs were arrested bringing the grain into the Atlantic Basin in a boat late in a night in December last, under such suspicious circumstances as to cause their arrest upon suspicion of being river thieves. No owner appearing at the time, the complainants in this case, Menoch and Welsh, were discharged; but the then Mayor and Chief of Police, believing that the property had been stolen, seized it and have kept it ever since Menoch and Welsh brought this action to recover the property. The *plaintiffs rested their case after proving that the prop*erty was taken from their possession, and did not deign to throw a bit of light as to where they obtained it.

The defence set up that the property belonged to the Western Transportation Company, and the grain was stolen from one of their boats lying at Pierrepont's stores, near Montague Ferry, Brooklyn side. [illegible] that 160 bushels of wheat were stolen [illegible] on the very night these men were ar[illegible] 70 bags of wheat in their possession, and [illegible] identified by several witnesses as be[illegible] same lot; and it was also shown that [illegible] lot of wheat of the kind (Tennessee) [illegible] at the time.

[illegible] of the wheat] was most perfect [illegible] course, rendered a verdict for de[illegible] Samuel Garrison; for defendants, D. [illegible]

WEDNESDAY, March 18—P. M.

There was a favorable turn in the Money supply on the Street to-day, and demand loans were quite freely made at 7 ₱ cent. First-class paper, strictly such, is also in good request at 5@ 8¼ ₱ cent., 50 to 60 days, 9 ₱ cent. longer dates. Fair names go from 10 to 12 ₱ cent. The offerings at Bank continue pretty full, but not so far in excess of the income as last week. Foreign Bills closed steady at 108¼ on London, sales, 108¼@ 108¾ demanded by some of the leading Bankers. There is a good supply. The exports of Produce from this port this week reach $1,880,000, and the Cotton movement to foreign ports from the South, amounts to an exchange of $5,000,000. The Custom Duties, to-day, were only $74,000. The reported receipts on the Railways, this open weather, show a material increase on the business of last March. The Erie line has already taken $340,000, against $236,000 to the 18th of the month last season. Both the Michigan roads are ahead of last year, and so are the Toledo and Rock Island. The Toledo $49,480, for the first fourteen days, against $32,349 same time in 1856. The Southern Michigan is $14,929 ahead.

The Stock Market opened at lower figures than on Tuesday, by ½ ₱ cent. on New-York and Erie, and a small fraction weaker on several other descriptions. But as the day advanced a better tone was observable, and on the Second Board a rise of 1 ₱ cent. was established on Erie, and ¼@ ½ ₱ cent. on Toledo, Michigan Southern, and New-York Central. Missouri State Sixes were 84¾@84¾, a fraction better than yesterday. The general market closed firm.

The Sub-Treasury operations to-day, in receipts from all sources, including $50,000 for transfer drafts on Boston, were $143,499; payments, $140,892; balance, $15,622,522. The California amount of Treasury drafts by the last mail, already presented, is $162,000.

The Herald, to work out a commercial crisis, repeats that the country has issued twenty-five hundred millions stocks, of which five hundred millions are held abroad, entailing an interchange of thirty-five millions a year, equal to one third the Cotton export. We must therefore repeat in turn that there is some wide mistake in the premises, and we again direct the attention of our neighbor to the official record:

The receipts are now 160,000 bales behind last season. The current opinion with the trade here is, that the estimate of 3,000,000 bales will scarcely be
